The Sheik and His Water Plant

There was a story on the inside pages which may have more effect on the future of the Middle East and north Africa than Premier Nasser and all the ferment and change now going on in Tunisia and Algeria.

It was the story of the Sheik of Kuwait and a seawater evaporation plant sold to him by the Westinghouse Electrical International Company.

The peoples and the history of the desert regions of the world have been shaped, often cruelly, by their arid, nonproductive lands.

About all they need is water. Given fresh water they will grow endless crops of vegetables, fruits and, after experiment, many cereal grains. I have seen the deserts south of Beersheba, Israel, for example, growing fine crops of tomatoes, peas and other vegetables on irrigated land. One of the most magnificent sights in any desert land is to see the myriad wild flowers which spring up and blossom along the wadies and in the area where the rainy season waters flooded. Their life is not long, but they testify with the eloquence of their beauty to the fact the soil needs only moisture to be richly productive.

The Sheik of Kuwait is going to be getting 2,500,000 gallons of fresh water per day right out of the Persian Gulf. He will do so at a cost of about 63 cents per thousand gallons. His costs are low because the evaporator is operated by waste from the natural gas supplies which are a by-product of oil production.

British Protection

Kuwait, or Ku-weit, is an independent principality under British protection. It lies on the northwest coast of the Persian Gulf and is little more than a pie slice of desert between Iraq and Saudi Arabia. It was fit only for the grazing and breeding of camels, the sale of pearls and horses, until oil was discovered there in vast quantities in 1938. That the Sheik should continue to spend money to better his country and his people is itself a revolutionary force in Arabia.

There are some 100,000 persons in the sheikdom. The Sheik has spent money on social services, but lack of planning has made same relatively ineffective. He had a small water filter plant, which the huge one replaces. Previous to it water was carted in 50 miles from a stream along the border of Iraq. No pipeline was laid, the Sheik fearing to be put at the mercy of his neighbors had he come to depend on it. Schools, a national health service free to all the people, and other enterprises are all a part of the oil revenue. Without doubt, this sheikoom inspired Iraq, the large neighbor, to some of the same progressive moves.

With the new "evaporator" there will be many households in Kuwait with running water—a fantastic living standard advance.

Seawater moves through four units, each heated, and each pressurized. The water is sprayed in and "flashed" into vapor, then condensed. The temperature drops with each unit, and after the fourth process the water is purified of all salt solids.

Fresh Water

This hunt for a way to make fresh water out of salt is much nearer major application than generally comprehended. The state of Israel, for example, has made great progress.

Time was, somewhere before the great ice ages, when the Sahara and other deserts of Africa and the Middle East bloomed and flourished. Goats and the ravages of war have produced most of the Middle Eastern deserts. Nothing in life or nature is so destructive as goats and sheep. They crop close. Their sharp hooves cut up the roots. The winds blow and the rains come. Erosion proceeds with tantastic speed. Lands of milk and honey can, in a few centuries, become deserts.

Water would literally revolutionize the great desert areas.

In fact, with world population increasing as it is, the nations which have always had enough water may find themselves depending on water lines from the oceans . . . as they now use pipelines for oil and natural gas. Without question, the future is going to demand bold, new steps, some desperate, to care for the widespreading cities and the Gargantuan thirst for water in industry and from the ever-increasing millions who must use it.

WALLS COLLAPSE AS FLAMES CONSUME FIVE-UNIT APARTMENT HERE

Fire Levels Apartment House Here

Windswept flames which raged out of control for four hours destroyed a five-unit apartment building in northeast Atlanta early Wednesday night.

Five DeKalb County fire companies which fought the fire were hampered by a shortage of water. An Atlanta Fire Department aerial ladder was able to direct only a weak stream on the building.

The apartments, owned by the residents and maintained on a cooperative basis, were at 1361 Chalmette Dr., NE, off Briarcliff road.

OBJECTS OF ART

A neighbor said the apartment buildings have a value of about $100,000 and that the furnishings and objects of art in the burned structure probably had a value of about $100,000.

"I lost everything that my husband and I have accumulated in nearly 38 years of marriage," said Mrs. David N. Meyer.

"All of the apartments were beautifully furnished. It breaks my heart to think of all those things going up in flames and not being able to get anything out of the building," she said.

ONE PERSON THERE

The only person in the apartments when the fire started about 5 p.m. was Mrs. I. G. Ely. She saw smoke and had time only to pull a coat over her housecoat. A neighbor said Mrs. Ely had returned from the Atlanta airport only a few minutes earlier.

Residents said the fire apparently started in the basement and spread through the two floors. The DeKalb Fire Department said it received a call at 5:09 p.m.

Two firefighters were injured.

Loses — Hands Down

High of 40 Predicted As Freeze Eases Here

By WARREN BOSWORTH

Warm weather is on the way to drive the chill from Georgia's bones and remedy somewhat the crippling gas shortage which has closed down businesses and schools in Atlanta and many other sections of the state.

Despite the predicted warmup, however, most of the schools and industries shut down by the cold wave will remain closed Thursday, it was reported.

At least 150 DeKalb County families in Chamblee were virtually without water again late Wednesday night when a 30-inch water main, which had cracked Tuesday afternoon and was repaired Wednesday morning, rebroke.

W. Holt Weaver, superintendent of the DeKalb water works, was supervising Wednesday night's latest break.

Flowing waters from the cracked main were reported to be flooding across Clairmont road in the vicinity of the Naval Air Station.

Bank Loans Given Lift of $3 Billion

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board today reduced by one-half of one per cent the reserves which must be maintained by its member banks against demand deposits.

The action, another credit-easing and antideflationary move, will release about 500 million dollars from the legally frozen funds of the system's 6,400 member banks.

This means a theoretical additional three billion dollars in lending capacity in the reserve banking system.

For banks in the central reserve cities—New York and Chicago—the reduction is from 20 per cent to 19½ per cent, effective Feb. 27. This will release about 125 million dollars of reserves.

At the banks in other large cities, called reserve cities (Atlanta is in this category), the reduction is from 18 per cent to 17½ per cent, also effective Feb. 27. It will release about 195 million dollars.

At banks in smaller cities, called country banks, the change is from 12 per cent to 11½ per cent. It will release about 180 million dollars. This is effective March 1.

Bankers figure that the amount of reserves released in effect creates six times that amount of lending capacity.

On this basis, the 500 million dollars of lowered reserves will boost lendable funds by three billions.

Churchill, 83, Stricken With Pneumonia

Roquebrune-Cap-Martin, France, Feb. 19 (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill, 83, has pneumonia and pleurisy, his doctors said tonight. But he smoked two cigars today and was described as comfortable and in good spirits.

A medical bulletin issued at 9:30 p.m. through Montague Browne, the former Prime Minister's private secretary, said:

"Sir Winston Churchill is suffering from pneumonia at the base of the lung and pleurisy. He had a good night and has passed a comfortable day."

The bulletin was signed by Lord Moran, Churchill's private physician who flew in from London, and Dr. David M. Roberts, his physician on the Riviera.

HOPE, Ark., Feb. 19 (AP)—Ben G. Owens, owner of several department stores in this area, received the following letter from Las Cruces, N.M., yesterday.

"Dear Sir: Sometime ago when I was a little girl and was in your store I took a comb without paying for it. Enclosed you will find 50 cents. I hope you will forgive me for it. Thank you very much. I wish not to sign my name."

Owens said his stores have not handled combs for about six years.

Ailing Heart and Knee Couldn't Stop Hero, 11

By JAMES SHEPPARD

An 11-year-old boy with a blood clot in his knee and a mended heart shocked himself and family Wednesday by running to summon firemen to his grandparents' blazing house.

"I didn't know I could run," rejoiced Eddie Phillips. "Maybe now I can play football."

When grandfather and grandmother Claud A. Ray's house burst into flames at 443 Woodward Ave., SE, Eddie dashed more than two blocks to the Company 10 fire house at Bryan and Oakland streets.

Breathless, Eddie yelled: "Somebody help me! My grandmother's house is afire!"

Excited and exhausted, Eddie's vocal chords temporarily stopped. He couldn't answer Assistant Fire Chief C. C. Styron when he asked the fire location.

Styron said he realized the boy was shocked speechless.

Eddie jumped into the fire chief's car and used his hands to motion where to go. Firemen followed.

He regained his voice after the fire was put out.

The speedy action held the fire damage to the kitchen and roof.

"Eddie's my oldest grandchild," said grandmother Ray proudly. "I'm surprised and thankful to know he can run."

Mrs. Ray was preparing lunch for Eddie's brothers, Jimmy, 10;

Vandiver's Curbs on Voters Approved 134-40 by House; Griffin To Block Pay Raises

Won't Divert Funds for Legislators

By JACK NELSON

Gov. Griffin, warning that state spending must be curtailed, indicated Wednesday that he will refuse to provide funds for an increase in legislators' pay.

The Senate Wednesday approved a joint resolution authorizing the $10-a-day raise. The resolution, authorized by Rep. John Odom of Camden, was adopted by the House Tuesday.

The Senate also amended the resolution to provide pay raises for employes of the Legislature. The House quickly endorsed the amendment.

Legislators now are paid $30 a day for the 40-day sessions.

Griffin flatly declared his opposition to the raise at his press conference and pointed out emphatically that "I would have to transfer the money for it from contingent funds."

This puts the governor in direct opposition to some of his own legislative leaders who supported the pay raise measure.

State Treasurer George B. Hamilton said the raises can not be granted unless Griffin orders funds for that purpose transferred from the contingency section of the budget. Hamilton said the raises would total about $125,000 a year.

Rep. Colbert Hawkins, Griffin's floor leader in the House, declared he voted for the House resolution because the legislators "deserve" a pay raise.

Hawkins said he thought most

Griffin Gets Mountain, Docks Bills

By BRUCE GALPHIN

The Georgia House Wednesday sent to the governor authorization for purchasing Stone Mountain and the Savannah docks, the first of his major recommendations to clear the independent-minded Assembly this session.

It also completed action on resolutions proposing an investigation of fire and auto insurance rate increases recently granted by Comptroller General Zack Cravey and a general study of insurance laws.

In addition, the House sent to the Senate a constitutional amendment which would extend Assembly terms from two to four years, raise legislative salaries to $3,000 a year and ban state employes from serving in the Assembly.

The ports legislation, which appeared to be doomed last week, breezed through with comfortable majorities.

It was pushed by Griffin's floor leader, Rep. Colbert Hawkins of Screven County, and received an assist from veteran Rep. Frank Twitty of Mitchell County, a Vandiver leader.

The first ports bill would give the Georgia Ports Authority power to raise money by mortgaging property in addition to its present bonding powers, allow it to sell

U.N. CHIEF MUNRO (R) HERE FOR BAR MEETING

U.N. President Here, Urges Space Parley

By FRANK WELLS

There is an urgent need for a conference among nations of the United Nations to consider use of outer space for peaceful purposes only, the president of the U.N. General Assembly said in Atlanta Wednesday night.

Sir Leslie Munro, who is also New Zealand's ambassador to the United States, made the remark at a press conference prior to the meeting of the American Bar Assn. here Thursday.

"The General Assembly should consider the problems posed by the now possible travel of satellites in outer space," Sir Leslie said. "There should be a prior conference of diplomats, scientists and lawyers to consider the many problems raised by the possibility of space travel."

Sir Leslie said that the problem was similar to laws governing free passage of the seas and said that the upcoming conference in Geneva of U.N. representatives to discuss freedom of the seas would bring up questions also relevant to space travel.

Sir Leslie also discussed "summit talks." He said that he believed a summit meeting without prior meetings on the diplomatic level would be not only "useless but dangerous."

The General Assembly president quoted Lester Pearson of Canada, a former president of the United Nations General Assemly, as saying, "We need more work in the valleys before we can talk at the summit."

"I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. Pearson," Sir Leslie said.

The U.N. official declined to comment on the French-Tunisian dispute.

Court Voids New Orleans Bus Seating

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19 (AP)—The U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals today struck another blow at Louisiana segregation by declaring unconstitutional laws that require separate seating for Negroes and whites on streetcars and buses in New Orleans.

It was the fourth time in seven days that the appeals court had ruled against Louisiana segregation laws. The court last Thursday acted in cases involving city public schools, city park facilities and state colleges.

Today's ruling upheld Federal District Judge J. Skelly Wright, who granted an injunction stopping city officials and New Orleans Public Service, Inc., from enforcing transit segregation laws.

The appeals court backed up its ruling by citing the U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down segregation on Montgomery, Ala., city buses. The New Orleans case, the court said, was controlled by the Montgomery case.

George S. Dinwiddie, president of New Orleans Public Service, said in a statement the company would continue its present operating practices of seating Negroes and whites in different sections of the buses and street cars.

$1 Poll Tax Amendment Is Defeated

By WILLIAM M. BATES

The House handed Gov. Griffin another stinging defeat Wednesday by approving overwhelmingly a bill backed by Lt. Gov. Vandiver's forces seeking to tighten voter qualifications.

Before passing the bill 134 to 40, the House rejected an amendment sponsored by Griffin Floor Leader W. Colbert Hawkins of Other Legislature stories on Pages 8, 9 and 16.

Screven County to levy a $1 poll tax on future new voters. The vote against the amendment was 97 to 61.

The Vandiver-backed bill was transmitted immediately to the Senate for a first reading Wednesday so that it will have time to win final passage by Friday's adjournment.

The action came just one day after the House had killed Griffin's own voter qualification proposal. Griffin had assailed the House's earlier action.

CURBING NEGRO VOTE

The measure passed by the House is aimed primarily at curbing Negro voting. It was drafted by a special election law study committee that worked for 10 months on the voting question.

Major provision of the bill is a 30-question examination test to be required of persons attempting to register who cannot qualify by reading and writing a section of the Constitution.

The test would replace one now required of illiterate voters. But the proposed new examination is made up of difficult questions and an applicant must get 20 of the 30 to pass.

PRESENT LAW

Under the present law, the questions are relatively simple and only 10 must be answered correctly for passage.

The new bill also tightens generally the present voter registration machinery and procedure, but does not apply to the 1,200,000 persons already qualified to vote and does not call for a re-registration.

House passage of the voter qualification bill climaxed a day

The announcement said Murphy would represent the United States "in exercising this government's good offices" in seeking a solution which would be "peaceful and equitable."

LOWEST RATES IN SOUTHEAST

State Controls Save Virginians Millions on Fire Insurance Costs

By LARRY WEEKLEY

Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch Staff Writer
Special to The Constitution

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 19 — Virginia has the lowest fire insurance rates in the Southeast, according to experts here, and effective regulation by the state appears to be the main reason.

In the 30 years since Virginia tightened up on permissible insurance profits, the State Corporation Commission has imposed rate reductions totaling slightly more than $13 million.

To people buying fire insurance in Virginia, this has meant cumulative savings of almost $134 million.

Today fire insurance in Virginia costs less than half — 45 per cent — as much as it cost in 1932 on an over-all basis.

Regulation hasn't been the only reason for those reductions, of course. Steadily declining fire losses have helped. So have better building methods and the gradual destruction or improvement of high-risk structures such as old mercantile buildings.

But state officials doubt that equal reductions would have been made voluntarily by insurance companies.

"The companies would have brought the rates down some," a Virginia official said privately yesterday. "But I think it's only human to take care of yourself, and insurance companies are human like the rest of us."

Virginia has regulated insurance since 1906 under a general constitutional provision. But until 1928 the commissioner of insurance and the State Corporation Commission lacked strong statutory authority.

What happened in 1928 in Virginia is historic. Under the leadership of Gov. Harry F. Byrd—now a U.S. senator—Virginia reformed its insurance regulation with legislation that prohibited insurance companies from imposing new rates unless they were

Ike Wins Backing For $3.9 Billion Aid

Congress Leaders Vow Help But Warn of Rough Going

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for $3,942,000,000 for foreign aid. Congressional leaders quickly pledged their support but warned that the request faced rough going in the House and Senate.

DIES FOR HORSE—LODI, Calif., Feb. 19—Carlton Speare, 9, was found dead in his home yesterday, a bullet through his head. He left a note: "Goodbye, Cindy. You are my love." Cindy was a pet horse, recently sold. Carlton's brother, Richard, 5, said they were watching television when Carlton said "I'm going to shoot myself."

The President declared in a special message that discontinuance—or even a sharp reduction—in the aid program would mean a "massive increase" in defense spending and a "heavy increase" in draft calls to protect an isolated America.

He said that without its mutual security program the United States would be left virtually alone in a world dominated by Russian and Red Chinese Communism. He said this left foreign aid as "our only logical course."

MILITARY AID

The President's request for nearly four billion dollars in military and economic aid for the fiscal year starting July 1 was forwarded to Congress from his Thomasville, Ga., vacation headquarters. More than half, or about $2,600,000,000 would be in military or defense-support aid.

House and Senate leaders of both parties endorsed the President's stand that this country must continue aid to friendly nations in a world threatened by Communism. But they noted that the opposition this year seemed stronger than ever.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.) praised the President's "pretty strong" message and called on business men to support both the foreign aid and reciprocal trade programs. He said the trade program also would be in peril unless businessmen rally behind it.

AMERICAN GOODS

Rayburn said both programs provide money for overseas buyers to purchase American goods made by American workers. Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N. Y.) also stressed the "anti-recession" aspects of the aid program.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said foreign aid was "a major part of the foreign policy of the United States." He said Congress would give the President's message "a careful and thorough study."

"There are grave questions which must be resolved," Johnson said, "and they can be resolved only after searching scrutiny."

The President broke down his aid request this way:

—$1,800,000,000 for military assistance to allied and associated nations. This included weapons for the NATO, Baghdad Pact, Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and other allies.

—$835,000,000 for defense support to 12 free nations supporting "substantial military forces," of which 70 per cent would go to South Korea, Nationalist China, Viet-Nam and Turkey.

—$21,000,000 in special assistance to help maintain political and economic stability in nations where the United States does not support substantial military forces, including Morocco and Libya, and for such programs as the world-wide malaria eradication program.

—$625,000,000 for economic development assistance.

—$142,000,000 for U. S. contribution to the United Nations technical assistance program.

—$1,500,000 for U. S. contribution to the Organization of American States.

—$200,000,000 for the contingency fund.

—$106,600,000 for other programs, including contribution to U. N. childrens' fund, refugee programs, atoms-for - peace program, plus administration costs.

British Ship Blows Up, 60 Aboard

MANAMA, Bahrein, Persian Gulf, Feb. 19 (AP)—A new British freighter carrying explosives for Iran's oil fields blew up in the Sitra anchorage tonight while the crew was fighting a 48-hour-old fire.

Some wreckage was found two miles away.

Rescue craft working by the light of flames from the shattered hulk of the 7,440-ton Seistan quickly picked up one dead man and nine wounded survivors from more than 60 persons reported to have been aboard.

LEAPS FROM WATER

"The ship just seemed to jump out of the water," an injured seaman said.

There were reports that at least 20 others also have lived through the blast, which rocked the harbor area. The exact casualty toll was not likely to be known until tomorrow.

The Seistan, a motor ship built in 1957 at South Shields, England, had a fire aboard when she entered the Persian Gulf on a voyage from Liverpool and put into Bahrein waters to extinguish it. The fire was brought under control, but burned on while crewmen fought it with steam and others tackled the job of unloading about 175 tons of explosives from the holds. Half the explosives had been moved ashore when the blast ripped the ship.

CARRYING EXPLOSIVES

Owned by the Strick Line Ltd., of London, the Seistan was carrying both the explosives and other material for use in the Iranian oil fields. The cargo was estimated worth $2,800,000.

The skipper is a Welshman, Capt. W. Chappell.

A company spokesman said there were 12 British officers and about 50 Asian crew members under Chappell.

Sign Trade Pact

VIENNA, Feb. 19 (UP)—Radio Budapest said today Argentina and Hungary have signed a trade agreement providing for $2,300,000 worth of Hungarian exports to Argentina.

Skeleton Found in Prison; Georgia Ex-Convict Sought

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 19 (AP)—A murder charge was filed today against an ex-convict named Jack Youngblood in the 19-year-old slaying of the "baby bandit" whose skeleton was found in state prison last night.

The skeleton, identified tentatively as that of Paul Joe Payne, was found under the concrete floor of the prison metal shop where officials say he was slain after winning in a dice game in 1939 when he was 21 years old.

Dist. Atty. Gen. Harry Lee Nichol filed the murder charge against Youngblood after taking statements from three long-term prisoners who were shifted from the prison to Davidson County jail for their safety today.

Youngblood, who lived at Lafayette, Ga., was sentenced to prison in 1934 from Chattanooga for highway robbery and was discharged in 1940, six months after Payne disappeared from prison. Payne was listed as an escapee for 19 years.

Nichol said Youngblood was last seen in Texas after his release here. An order for his arrest has been sent throughout the nation.

Payne, sentenced from Chattanooga in 1937 for attempted bank robbery, vanished from the prison Sept. 2, 1939. Puzzled authorities figured the 19-year-old bandit must have walked out the main entrance with visitors.

The mystery-shrouded case was reopened last night when police, acting on a tip, found the grave.

Filters Don't Protect Smokers, Panel Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Most filter-tip cigarets produce as much or more nicotine and tar as cigarets without filters, a House committee reported today.

The congressmen accused cigaret manufacturers of having deceived the American public in their filter-tip advertising.

Unanimously approving a report made by a subcommittee after hearings last year, the House government Operations Committee also took the Federal Trade Commission to task. It held that the FTC, by not policing the advertising, allowed smokers to become "brainwashed that filters would furnish health protection."

END CONFUSION

The FTC announced Saturday it had invited manufacturers to help develop uniform specifications for determining tar and nicotine content. It said its aim is to end confusion over various claims.

While the tobacco industry denied there were any health hazards in smoking, the committee said, the industry made the hazard charges appear true by implying that filter tips remove alleged causes of cancer and heart disease.

Filter tips accounted for 40 per cent of cigaret sales in 1957, the report said. The figure in 1952 was only 1.4 per cent.

STRONGER TOBACCO

When many people didn't like the taste of their first filtered smokes, the report said, the manufacturers loosened the filters and used lower grade, stronger tobacco to let more smoke particles get through. But they still charged two to six cents more a pack for filter tips, the report said.

"The filter cigaret smoker is, in most cases, getting as much or more nicotine and tar from the filter than he would get from the regular cigaret the advertisers have persuaded him to abandon—for his health's sake," the report added.

Public statements from medical experts were quoted in the report but the report itself did not offer any conclusions on a possible relationship between smoking and cancer.

Asserting the tobacco industry apparently conspired to boycott the hearings, although invited to testify, the report said, "It is reprehensible that the tobacco industry should so shirk its responsibilities to the consumer."

These statistics were included in the report:

The tobacco industry's sales run more than five billion dollars a year; taxes exceed 2½ billion and more than 100 million a year is spent on advertising.

Lung cancer deaths shot up from 2,500 reported cases in 1930 to 29,000 in 1956. Various reasons were advanced for this increase.

Third Mystery Tremor Shakes Carolina Coast

WILMINGTON, N.C., Feb. 19 (AP)—The third earth tremor in as many days shook this North Carolina coast city and surrounding area today, and the mystery has at least one scientist worried.

The first tremor came Monday at 9:40 a.m. The second big shake came yesterday at 9:25 a.m. Today's shake was right on time, 9:25 a.m.

Each tremor was felt throughout the city and most of New Hanover — Wilmington — and adjoining Brunswick counties. Houses shook, windows rattled, some plaster fell from ceilings. But otherwise there was little damage.

Dr. G. R. McCarthy, who is in charge of the seismograph at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, admitted he was at loss to explain the earth tremors.

"It's got me worried, too," he said.

Noting that each tremor has come almost at the same time, McCarthy suggested that the mathematical odds against three such tremors on three days running almost at the same time of day made it "highly unusual."

City officials here have ruled out the possibility of jet-caused sonic booms, dynamite explosions or any explosion caused by military installations in the area.

VIEWS CIVIL WAR

Gen. Lee Great, Says Churchill

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—Winston Churchill says the American civil war was "the noblest and least avoidable of all the great mass conflicts."

And he regards Robert E. Lee as "one of the noblest Americans who ever lived and one of the greatest captains known to the annals of war."

In the last volume of his "History of the English-Speaking Peoples," now appearing in Life magazine, Churchill traced the origins of the war.

He wrote: "In regions so wide and varied as those of the Union, extreme divergencies of interest, outlook and culture had developed. South of the 40th Parallel and the projecting angle formed by the Mississippi and the Ohio the institution of Negro slavery had long reigned almost unquestioned. . .

ONLY RELATIONSHIP

"The planters of the South, and the slaves they owned, had both grown up in wide unkempt lands without ever having known any other relationship. Now, suddenly, in the midst of the 19th century, dire challenge was hurled at the whole system and the society in which it was engrained.

"A considerable, strongly characterized, and slowly matured community found itself subjected to the baleful and scandalized glare of the Christian world. . . Now began the rumblings, tremors, and exhalations which portended a frightful eruption. . ."

Of the South at midwar, Churchill wrote: "by the end of 1863 all illusions had vanished. The South knew they had lost the war and would be conquered and flattened. It is one of the enduring glories of the American nation that this made no difference to the Confederate resistance. In the North, where success was certain, they could afford to have bitter division.

COURAGE REMAINS

"On the beaten side the departure of hope left only the resolve to perish arms in hand. Better the complete destruction of the whole generation and the devastation of their enormous land, better that every farm should be burned, every city bombard, every fighting man killed, than that history should record that they had yielded. Any man can be trampled down by superior force, and, death in whatever shape it comes, is only death, which comes to all. ."

Churchill concluded: ". . .Three quarters of a million men had fallen on the battlefield. The North was plunged in debt; the South was ruined. The material advance of the United States was cast back for a spell. But, as John Bright said to his audience of English working folk, 'At least after the smoke of the battlefield had cleared away, the horrid shape which had cast its shadow over the whole continent had vanished and was gone forever.' "

Macmillan Asks Series Of Meetings

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan proposed today a series of East-West summit conferences if a first one produced any modest success. He sisted that all meetings be well-prepared in advance.

Macmillan

The British leader warned the West against throwing itself at the mercy of the Soviets by abandoning nuclear weapons. He said Western abandonment of nuclear weapons would double, treble or even quadruple the military value of the Soviet Union's weapons.

Opening a two-day foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons, Macmillan spoke out in earnest for advance preparations for talks between Western and Soviet leaders.

Banging on the table before him, he told a cheering house: "I want a summit conference, but I want it to be successful."

"Perhaps if we had any modest success at the first meeting, further meetings might follow with similar preparation," he said.

Disarmament in the widest sense, he said, might be a profitable subject at any top-level meeting. But he said even the proposal for joint East-West abandonment of nuclear weapons must be approached carefully. Such disarmament, he added, must bring a corresponding reduction in the total military power of each side.

This Might Result In Real Economy!

There's more to be said for House approval of a $10-a-day pay raise for members of the General Assembly than their reluctance for a roll-call vote would indicate.

In fact, if it should result in another Assembly which would resist the pressures of the executive department and act independently on behalf of the state and its taxpayers as has this one, it would be a real economy.

It is quite true that most members of the Assembly serve at a financial sacrifice. Their present pay barely covers minimum expenses and transportation. This is bound to be reflected through the years in a lowering of quality of laws and lawmakers and further strengthening of the executive department at the expense of the legislative.

The present Assembly, especially at this session, has shown a rare independence of which few citizens will disapprove. By clamping the lid on unnecessary administration spending proposals and through questioning and examining all legislation, the House and Senate have saved millions in taxpayers' funds.

Rejection of the unwise and politically inspired proposal to add approximately 80 million dollars to the indebtedness of the rural roads program we hope has checked a trend which inevitably would lead to state bankruptcy.

Gov. Griffin, who has supported pay raises for many other state employes and whose record of spending surpasses that of any administration in history, opposes the raise. Presumably he would block it. He is no doubt disturbed about the show of independence and refusal to go along with his excessive new spending requests.

If a pay raise will improve the quality of the Legislature and give us members who demonstrate integrity, wisdom and independence, it's a corking good idea. The small amount involved, compared with the ever-growing state budget, might prove to be the best economy move of all. Certainly such service should not be expected at great personal sacrifice.

This newspaper long has supported a stronger legislative branch which could and would exercise its proper role in relation to the executive. Especially is this important in the field of control over spending. The Assembly should fear no roll-call vote which contributes to that end.

Foreign Aid Remains Our Best Investment

President Eisenhower has asked the Congress to approve a foreign aid bill of $3,900,000,000. He correctly describes it as the "smallest amount" America can wisely spend to help its friends—who are non-Communist friends.

We must do this.

Some of the cotton mill interests in the South oppose. We merely point out that if this measure does not go through then Japan and all of Asia cannot do otherwise than turn to Russia for trade and assistance. If this happens then all America will suffer. This is a hard bit of reality which fits into our hard, exacting times.

The Congress must somehow rise above party and local recession sentiment to assist the President to achieve success with his program. If foreign aid fails, we will be forced to spend much more on a home-aid dole.

Public Always Pays For 'Special Privilege'

The State Board of Corrections properly has voted to remove convicts from Wheeler County work camps.

Across a span of years and in the face of warnings that laws were being violated, these prisoners admittedly have been used to do work for private citizens and for some state employes or officials.

Why?

Well, the answer is rather obvious.

It illustrates why politics and politicians have a bad name.

Wheeler County Commissioner Oris Braswell says there was pressure from those who wanted special privileges, even though such privileges were against the law. Commissioner Braswell seemingly did not wish to offend influential people who might be helpful to him in being re-elected.

It is too bad the people who put the pressure on the commissioner can't be exposed. At any rate the people of Wheeler County probably know who got the special favors.

We do not believe the people of any county want to be governed by special privilege.

Special privilege is an old and dishonorable custom, immoral, unethical and in this case it is against the law.

By and large we get the sort of government we deserve.

The convicts properly will be removed from Wheeler or any county which violates the law.

Now Fulton Legislators Ask Police Fee System

Fulton County's delegation in the General Assembly seems determined to do as much damage as possible to the administrative and fiscal structure of Atlanta's city government before this session ends.

Dissuaded from granting a police pay raise by legislative act after protests from the public as well as the mayor and board of aldermen, they now have gone off on another tangent.

They propose to increase the uniform allowances of policemen from the present $100 to $250 a year. They will not force the city to raise taxes to grant the proposed $150 hike under the new proposal. They will make fee-grabbing constables of every police officer in the city instead to raise whatever amount that would be required.

The legislators would make all City Court fines, including traffic cases, which exceed $3, subject to a $1 court cost. They would extend the evils of the outmoded fee system to Atlanta's law enforcement machinery by an ill-advised, dangerous legislative act which could destroy the police department's effectiveness.

We cannot believe the citizens of this community want their policemen to be responsible for collecting fees to pay their own salaries. Such a precedent could be carried to ridiculous lengths, creating a police gestapo to ride herd on the civilian population. If this fee-system tactic is adopted, future legislative delegations would be pressured to up court costs at every session.

We reaffirm our belief that the police department is underpaid and that the board of aldermen should remedy the situation if funds can be found. But this unwarranted and unwelcome meddling in city government affairs by this legislative delegation is the most unhealthy business in many a day.

How in heaven's name can a city run its affairs, establish salary schedules and tax rates and set up modern court procedures if the work of years is to be upset at the whim of legislators?

Thank goodness only a few days of the session are left in which this group can undo whatever good it may have accomplished with the late primary and neighborhood registration bills. If it lasted much longer, they might decide to take over the entire city government under the legislative courtesy rule.

Worthy Measures Wait Legislature's Approval

A Legislature which has been throwing roadblocks where roadblocks have been needed should act quickly these last two days to let some worthy legislation pass.

Highway safety, the marriage waiting period, the proposal to lift the office of county school superintendent to a professional education level—those are matters the legislators cannot in good conscience neglect.

There is also the bill now in the Senate that would require the state to maintain those sections of state highway within city limits.

Having refused an allocation of the gasoline tax to cities for road maintenance, the least the Assembly can do to help the municipalities is to obligate the state to carry on the needed maintenance.

Governor Is Advised To Put House in Order

In the Griffin Daily News

We who believe in states' rights, the right of people to govern themselves on a local basis, will make considerable progress only when local government has the respect of the citizenry.

As of today, our state government has a shining black eye. The Ports Authority is under investigation and facts which have been uncovered have the stench of an overripe mullet.

Instead of displaying the statesmanship we Georgians had every right to expect, our top officials have played politics during most of the present session of the General Assembly.

In a word, we are woefully disappointed in the turn Gov. Griffin's administration has taken these past few weeks.

Ask the average person on the street what he thinks of it and he will react with utter disgust. Nor do we blame him.

We believe that there still is time for the governor to get his house in order. Marvin Griffin is an excellent leader and we think that he, personally, has done an excellent job. But some of his appontees have fouled the nest badly. About 10 and a half months remain for the governor to continue the fine program which he undertook when elected. But if he is to take his rightful place in the history of the state, he must clean house and do it quickly.

Where Do Some of These Legislators Get Their Hostile, Anti-Progress Attitudes?

Chamblee—The bill to limit the age of students in the State University System is another example of the negativism that seems so prevalent among our legislators. Rather than looking in a positive direction, it appears to be the aim of many to restrict, impede or slow any type of progress.

The educational level in our state is, in general, behind the rest of the country.

This bill and the bill to close the schools will place us farther behind. Is it necessary to view life in such a hostile, negative way?

'We Thank You, Sir, And Are Grateful!'

Atlanta—It is indeed gratifying to have confirmed in proposed legislation sponsored by administration leaders the fact that learning does have an age limit. We students who through lack of financial means to enter college directly from high school or those of us who only after entering service or industry realized the need and desire for more education do not deserve the opportunity to go to a college of the University System. Having passed 21, the ability to learn and apply the benefits of this learning to the betterment of ourselves and the community has escaped us; so we should be content with our lot and not strive for things beyond our means of achievement.

Yes, it is true that we old dogs whose wives sacrifice and manage households on minimum standard budgets to get us through school cannot learn new tricks and it is time somebody told us. It's tough to be over the hill but we might as well face it.

Thank you, Mr. Hawkins, for putting us in our place.

Ready To Take To the Woods

The story is tailored for the last daze of the confused 1958 Georgia General Assembly session. It's an adaptation from a paragraph in the Wall Street Journal. The legislator had been having more than his county unit share of troubles. Constituents had been unhappy with him, so had fellow solons. Lobbyists had latched on to him in the halls outside the House chamber. Pressure groups had kept the pressure on.

He was relieved, this lawmaker was, when a group filed into his presence late in the session and the spokesman said, "Sir, we have come to urge you to join with us in our drive for forest preservation."

The lawmaker replied vigorously, "I don't know any group I would rather join. You can count on me. The way it looks now, any minute I may have to take to the woods."

Newsmen Unhappy About Ike's Tour

THOMASVILLE—Newsmen covering President Eisenhower's annual visit to Thomasville got a mild case of jitters one day this week. It came late in the afternoon when they learned the President had gone on an 80-mile drive through southwest Georgia while they cooled their heels in ignorance at the Scott Hotel.

The White House press corps has come nearly 1,000 miles to keep up with the President's activities. But the correspondents were not informed of Ike's four-hour trip to Newton, Ga., 40 miles away, until after the Chief Executive had returned to his vacation retreat at Milestone Plantation.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty had told the reporters earlier in the afternoon that the President was just taking a drive around the Thomasville countryside with his host, George M. Humphrey, and other guests.

But it turned out, as Hagerty later informed the press, that Ike had gone all the way up to Robert W. Woodruff's Ichuaway Plantation at Newton.

The newsmen, who are not allowed on the grounds at Milestone and have to get their news through Hagerty at the hotel, shuddered to think how badly they would have been caught off base if something had happened to the President while he was 40 miles away. Hagerty indicated that Ike and his friends did not originally set out to take such a long drive. But it was a pretty day and the first time he had been out of the house since his arrival five days earlier. So they decided to go on to Woodruff's place.

Ike no doubt preferred not to have a caravan of reporters trailing him and this is understandable. But the newsmen have a job to do and a public to keep informed and they weren't very happy about it. They get uneasy when they're supposed to be covering the President and he goes chasing off somewhere unknown to them.

This is an old story, however, of a constant battle between men in the White House seeking privacy and the reporters whose job it is to keep the public informed.

A presidential trip sometimes brings jitters to other folks, too, like the men who have to arrange hunting trips for the chief and try to see that he gets good shooting at quail and turkey.

There is a funny story about one of these men who was trying to show Ike where to go in the woods last year. The President didn't understand and walked off in another direction. This fellow, with his own shotgun in his hand, trotted up behind Ike and tapped him on the shoulder.

All of a sudden this guy felt some piercing eyes turned on him and realized that the Secret Service agents were watching him very carefully and disapprovingly. Never again, he decided, will he run up behind the President of the United States with a gun in his hand. It ain't a very healthy thing to do.

This Mother Has The Right Values

Yesterday I commented on a verse of the Bible that I recommend that Christians keep before them, "First they gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto the will of God" (II Corinthians 8:5). And not only must we give ourselves to the Lord once, but each day we must be careful to maintain that relation.

The Christian must give careful observance to his or her own devotional life. I know a mother who keeps the hour from 9 until 10 each morning as her prayer time. After the children are off to school and before she gets into the activities of the day, she feeds her own soul. She studies her Bible and finds there the standards for making her own decisions. She prays for guidance and she follows the leadings of the Lord when they come.

Through her daily practice of His presence, it is natural for her to confess her own sins before she is tempted to criticize others. Because of her regular association with Christ, it is not too difficult for her to hold to high standards in every situation. From her mind flows clean thoughts and clean speech naturally follows. Because of the discipline she learns in her time of prayer, she can exert discipline over her own personal habits.

As a pastor for some years, I have learned that those who "first have given themselves to the Lord" are the ones who mean the most in the church.

When one has "first given himself to the Lord," he invariably prays for others. Every person he meets who has a need is a name for his prayer list and such prayers are the type that result in action. Not only does such a person pray but also he is willing to become a part of the answer to his own prayer. Whether it be a physical need, a word of love and encouragement, a friendly visit or whatever, the dedicated one is ever seeking an opportunity of service.

I have talked with many couples who were having troubles in their marriage and home. But I have long since learned that two people cannot build a happy, Christian home together until "first they have given themselves to the Lord."

It is like the old song says, "It's me, O Lord, standing in the need of prayer."

Columbus Ledger

A Georgia legislator found it necessary to take the floor of the House on a point of personal privilege to answer an attack made on him by the governor in letters written to persons in his home county.

Rep. W. O. Carter of Hart County charged Gov. Griffin with attempting to purge him for his vote against the chief executive's bill to increase rural roads financing by 50 million dollars.

It is granted that the governor has the right to write to his friends at any time and on any subject he so desires. But even the governor now must realize that the statements he made in his letters were extremely ill-advised.

'Soapy' Williams Is Likely Candidate

LANSING, Mich.—While the presidential ambitions of Gov. G. Mennen Williams have hardly been a secret in recent years, the redoubtable "Soapy" has now charted his course irrevocably for 1960. He has done this by sanctioning the candidacy of his old friend and political ally, Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart, for the Senate seat now held by a Republican, Sen. Charles Potter.

Hart, a personable, friendly man of 46, out of the same background as Williams, will run in the congressional election this fall and more or less objective observers make him the odds-on favorite.

This means that while "Soapy" will run for his sixth term as governor and his re-election in November is a fairly safe bet, there will be no opening in '60 except the presidency.

Williams' name would be on any list of four or five candidates for the Democratic nomination.

These wintry weekends he has been out in Michigan's skiing country crowning snow queens and taking a turn on the ski runs himself. The long succession of Republican governors had been solemn gentlemen who wore hard collars and vests with white pique edging, so "Soapy" represents a break with tradition in more ways than one.

But in the big field in the Democratic sweepstakes the handicap the Republicans would hang on him is his alleged closeness to Walter Reuther, the dynamic head of the United Auto Workers Union. The evidence increases that Reuther is to be the Republican whipping boy again in '60 with even greater emphasis on the iniquities of the man who had so much to do with unionization of the auto industry.

If this identification can be made to stick, one of the Democrats' most attractive candidates will have been nullified.

In their search for a candidate to run against Williams the Republicans are having their own troubles, with the old split between the Taft and Eisenhower forces opening up again. Those on the extreme right who have been in the habit of coming through generously with campaign funds think this is the year to burn Reuther at the political stake.

Williams has just sent a comprehensive economic message to the Republican Legislature calling for a broad attack on the recession. He and Hart, who has seven children and an attractive wife, will make a highly effective team this fall. And there are some Republicans who understand that the old hell-and-brimstone denunciation may not be enough to win.

Will Protectionists Win Tariff Battle?

WASHINGTON—The real test of President Eisenhower's influence over his party has opened on Capitol Hill. It confronts him not on the issue of missiles or unemployment or conversations with the Russians—but on that ancient political controversy, the tariff.

Now, as in the days of McKinley, the central issue is fairly simple. Who shall have the last word on letting foreign goods into the country—the Congress and the Tariff Commission or the President?

At no time since the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act was passed in 1934 have the opponents of the bill seemed more confident.

Various specific factors are working against the administration. The rise in unemployment has made a deep impression on members of both parties. German and Japanese competition, both in the U.S. market and overseas, has increased since 1955. And in an election year local issues, particularly unemployment, tend to prevail over larger and seemingly more remote international questions.

Nevertheless, the President must consider a great many critical overseas economic problems. The Tariff Commission is obliged to concentrate on narrow specific issues such as whether the imports of lead and zinc are hurting the domestic producers of these raw materials. And the evidence is overwhelming that they are. But the President also has to consider, for example, the wider issue of what will happen to the already strained relations between the U.S. and Canada if the tariff on these products is increased.

At no time since the war has Canada been more important to the United States than now, and at no time have U.S.-Canadian relations been more delicate.

In this situation the President must decide whether it is more in the national interest to allow Canadian, Mexican and Peruvian exports of lead and zinc to hurt U.S. miners in 26 states or risk the international dangers of a further deterioration of U.S. relations with those countries.

The same kind of dilemma confronts the President over relations with West Germany, Britain and Japan. The Soviet Union is constantly holding out to West Germany the lure of a vast market stretching from the Oder through Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and China to the Pacific.

Similarly, Communist China is putting pressure on Japan to sell its surplus industrial production to Peiping. The administration realizes that it cannot for long hope to sell to Japan and Germany or deny these countries the right to sell to the Communist world if the U.S. market is closed to German and Japanese exports.

The President is up against a coalition of protectionists who vote protectionist to help each other.

The general view here is that the President will need to educate a lot of people and "pressure" quite a few Republicans to retain the power to decide tariff questions in the broadest terms of national rather than local interest.

Donald, 8, and Roy, 7, and her daughter, Christine Ray, 3. The children were playing in a hall. Eddie said he smelled smoke and heard Mrs. Opal Cowan scream. The Rays rent Mrs. Cowan an apartment in their home.

Eddie left the other children and went to Mrs. Cowan's apartment, where he saw the kitchen in flames.

"I walked quickly back to tell grandmother," related Eddie. "I was afraid to upset her because she has a heart condition, too. In my excitement I don't remember anything. All of a sudden I found myself running to the fire department to get help."

Another fire last June destroyed Eddie's family's home at Doraville and they lost all possessions. He said he didn't want the same thing to happen to his grandparents' home.

Mrs. Phillips said Eddie was hit by a car while returning home from school three weeks ago. Eddie injured his left leg and limped from a blood clot in the knee. She said doctors were waiting to see whether the clot would dissolve before advising surgery.

Two years ago, he said, Eddie underwent heart surgery. Mrs. Phillips feared her son would never recuperate. The operation proved successful, but doctors told Eddie it would be a long time before he could exercise normally.

Doctors End 3-Day Study Clinic Here

Doctors from the Southeast attending the Atlanta Graduate Medical Assembly Wednesday wound up their three-day session of study with emphasis placed on obstetrics, gynecology and pediatrics.

Speakers Wednesday included Dr. Edwin L. Prien of Boston University, who spoke first on the diagnostic implications of urological symptoms as normally seen by the general practitioner.

Dr. Prien's second talk dealt with the possibility of prevention of urinary stones by use of newer, simpler and less expensive regimens.

Dr. Harold O. Peterson of the University of Minnesota, discussed X-ray readings in diagnosing ureteral trouble.

Dr. Bayard Carter of Duke University, first spoke of the need for continuing training for the doctor to recognize some infections found in obstetrics and gynecology. His second talk dealt with a study of 60,000 cases showing the problems of diagnosing certain types of cancer in women patients.

Dr. Sidney S. Gellis, Boston University, showed a series of slides illustrating the great variety of disorders in children which can be diagnosed purely by inspection of the patient. His second talk dealt with anemias and other diseases due to drug therapy in children.

Dr. John A. Wall, Baylor University, spoke on the diagnosis of cancer of the uterus in two separate talks Wednesday afternoon.

Let Spain Into NATO, Envoy Asks

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The U.S. Ambassador to Spain said in Atlanta Wednesday that there is a "natural affinity" between this country and Spain, and that he hopes Spain may someday become a member of NATO.

John Davis Lodge, who arrived in chilly Atlanta by plane Wednesday night, talked with reporters about the speech on foreign affairs he will deliver to the American Bar Association at its meeting here.

Lodge, former movie actor, governor of Connecticut and U.S. Representative, seemed enthusiastic about the present relationship between Spain and the United States. He said the Spanish "man in the street" is "very friendly to the U.S."

He added Spain is strongly anti-Communist and in that country "we have a loyal and gallant ally."

The tall, youthful diplomat said Spain is not now a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—the bulkhead of America's defense in Europe—because of opposition of Norway and its Labor-Socialist party government. He said that opposition of one member country is enough to keep another nation out.

Lodge was governor of Connecticut before his 1954 appointment as Ambassador by President Eisenhower. He told reporters he has "no plans" to run for Connecticut's governorship again.

The diplomat said Spain should be a member of NATO because it is strategically located, one of the largest countries in Europe and has a surplus of manpower. Its membership is favored by Eisenhower, he said.

Lodge also said he strongly favors Eisenhower's requests for economic and military aid for Spain and other countries. He termed it "mutual security."

He advocated a five-year extension of the countries' reciprocal trade agreement because Spain's economy "affects our own economy."

$73 Million For Public Works Due

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Atlanta should expend some $73,000,000 to provide community facilities and public improvements by 1962, exclusive of available matching funds from other governments, according to a study unveiled Wednesday by Metropolitan Planning Commission experts.

Robert Stuart, commission director, and his aides offered preliminary outlines for a community facilities plan and a public improvements program to members of the joint Atlanta-Fulton County planning board. The planning board approved the study and asked final reports as promptly as possible.

The two studies along with a land use and a major street plan are essential elements of a workable program, which is required to insure federal participation in a multi-million-dollar urban renewal program planned for Atlanta.

Stuart said final drafts of the four-point program probably will be ready for final action of the joint planning board in another month.

Another $43,000,000 will be needed in non-school divisions to finance a new $15,000,000 city auditorium, $167,032 for fire department improvements; $500,000 for libraries; $85,000 for the city's motor transport division; $1,318,000 for new parks; $250,000 for prison farm improvements; $13,123,600 for streets and highways, and $12,000,000 for additional urban renewal financing.

Plant Blast Kills 6 Men

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (UP) — A casting furnace exploded today at at Reynolds Metal Co. plant, killing six workers and injuring three others. The blast broke a three-inch gas main, touching off a fire that raged for an hour.

The 63-acre plant, located in the suburb of McCook, is engaged in defense work and security restrictions immediately were imposed on the area.

The explosion and fire caused damages estimated at one million dollars. A company spokesman said the blast was caused by a defect in the furnace.

The dead were Edward Vincina, 35, a foreman; Willie T. Southern, 35; David W. Reynolds, 38; Woodrow Ware, 39; Marcell Ferguson, 25; and Floyd E. Williams, 35. Injured were Gus West, 47, Minor Smith, 32, and Clarence Bloss, 29.

The United States now grows more than half of the world's soybean crop. Other than its many food uses, it is planted to replenish nitrogen-starved soil.

Space Meetings an Urgent Need, U.N. President Munro Says Here

House of Delegates will open their meetings Saturday at the Biltmore here this and next week, Rhyne said he could only speak his personal feelings about questions asked and could not speak for the association.

In answer to a question, he said that he thought justices of the U.S. Supreme Court should have prior judicial experience before being appointed to the highest court in the land.

"I do not mean that as any personal criticism of any present or past members," the lawyer said. "Some of our greatest justices had no prior experience before taking their places on the Supreme Court bench."

Rhyne said that he did not advocate any legislation to support his views.

"That would be taking some of the constitutional powers away from the President," he said. "I would just like to see a precedent set of appointing former judges of lower courts to the highest bench."

Rhyne said that he had been making a great many talks to groups of lawyers asking that they defend the courts against unjust criticism.

"Each lawyer is an officer of the court, and as such should defend it," Rhyne said. "I do not mean that each decision should remain unquestioned but that the court itself should not be subjected to undue criticism. In other words, be critical of decisions but not of judges."

Sir Leslie discussed the question of union of several Arab states.

"If my Arab friends desire unity, it is a matter primarily for themselves to decide," he said. "The nature of that unity might become a matter or study by other countries. It is really far too early to make comment on what these federations of states will mean."

Lawyers from all over the country began gathering in Atlanta Wednesday night for a double session of American Bar. Assn. groups.

The meeting, which will last from Thursday through Tuesday, is a combined meeting of the Southern Regional meeting of the ABA and a semiannual meeting of the ABA House of Delegates, the policy-making group of the lawyers association.

Main speakers Thursday will include ABA President Rhyne; the Hon. John D. Lodge, U.S. ambassador to Spain; Gen. David Sarnoff, board chairman, Radio Corp. of America; and Sir Leslie Munro.

Between 1,500 and 2,000 attorneys are expected to attend the sessions, first of which will be the Southern Regional meeting at the Dinkler Plaza.

Included among later speakers will be Thomas E. Dewey, former governor of New York and twice candidate for president; Associate Justice Tom Clark of the U.S. Supreme Court; and the Rt. Hon. Lord Hailsham, chairman of the British Conservative Party.

Thursday's session will get under way at 9 a.m. with welcoming address by Gov. Griffin, and Mayor Hartsfield. Carl K. Nelson, president of the Georgia Bar Assn.; J. Ralph McClelland, president of Atlanta Bar Assn.; and Francis Shackelford, president of the Lawyers Club of Atlanta, will also welcome the visiting attorneys.

predicted a relief in the seige of coldness which has gripped Georgia since last week, the Atlanta Gas Light Co. issued another warning, calling for extreme conservation of natural gas. A spokesman said that unless the situation is watched carefully, certain areas served by the company may be cut off entirely.

The gas problem is not just one faced by Atlantans. It is a systemwide situation faced by the gas company which serves more than 50 communities in 29 Georgia counties.

Schools which have been closed by the gas shortage have been asked to remain closed Thursday by the gas company. Included in the schools shut down are all DeKalb County schools, 67 Atlanta schools, most Fulton County schools, and six Decatur schools.

Westminster School will remain shut Thursday as will all the city's parochial schools.

In Macon, officials at Mercer University announced that the school will be closed until Monday because of the present gas shortage.

George D. Connell, university president, said that the shutdown would affect evening classes and Saturday classes for teachers also.

The 158th General Hospital reserve unit, scheduled to meet Thursday night at the Naval Air Station in Chamblee, has also canceled its meeting.

Gilmer County School Superintendent R. Everett Weeks said Thursday night that his schools will remain closed for the remainder of the week and will open on Monday if the weather permits.

U.S. 78, which runs through Gilmer County and serves as the county's main artery, is still iced over.

The U.S. Internal Revenue office located in the Peachtree-Baker building will be open Thursday. Other federal government offices will remain closed.

Southern Technical Institute at Chamblee will be closed Thursday and Friday. The college has been forced to close because of a coal shortage at the Naval Air Station, which provides heat to Southern Tech. The school plans to reopen Monday.

Atlanta Gas Light Co. said Wednesday that natural gas is being shipped in from points as far away as New Mexico. The shipments are coming in fast but rail tie-ups may slow them.

Ordinarily the gas company's tanks holds 4,790,000 gallons of liquid propane gas and are refilled once a year under normal circumstances. But the frigid drop around Georgia during the first two weeks of February has consumed more than 4,811,532 gallons.

So far this winter, according to calculations up through Tuesday afternoon, the gas company had used more than 13,800,000 gallons.

Rock G. Taber, president of the Atlanta Gas Co., said Wednesday afternoon that "under normal circumstances the tanks used by the company would care for normal emergencies, which they have done prior to the severe jolt of weather."

He said that recently his company spent more than six million dollars to provide for such emergencies. "I am thankful to say we were ready, and if we had not been, we would have been in more serious trouble than we are now," he added.

Taber said that his company's main supply of gas comes from Southern Natural Gas Co. of Birmingham, which brings it in from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

He pointed out that normally on a cold day the peak load would be 381 million cubic feet or gas a day. The cold wave is calling for over 500 million cubic feet of gas per day.

Only one time previously since natural gas has been used in Georgia has the temperature hit a four-day low like the present one. That was in 1940. However, the 1940 siege of coldness wasn't preceded by an extended period of coldness as the one was this year.

Natural gas came to Georgia in 1930.

While Georgia shivered in the worst cold wave since January, 1940, bugs, insects, and other pests have been taking it on the chin, too.

William E. Blasingame, director of the state department of entomology, said that the cold spell had been beneficial in ridding the state of some of its insects and pests. Probably hit hardest by the icy conditions is the screw worm, which costs south Georgia farmers millions of dollars per year in losses to cattle and other farm animals.

"The insects weren't wiped out altogether," he said, "but there will be a noticeable difference this summer."

He pointed out that to rid mankind of insects for all time is just about impossible. "There are fossils over 250 million years old which show imprints of the roach," he said, "and we have the same or similar type roaches today. So if they can survive the Ice Age and other elements, they can survive our Georgia winters."

As the Big Freeze began to ease its grip on the state Wednesday, there was a general outbreak of broken water pipes and the setting off of fire-alarm sprinklers. The situation probably will worsen as the weather warms up even more on Thursday and Friday.

Capt. Eugene Portwood, 40, of 4280 Covington Rd., Decatur, was treated at Grady Hospital for a back injury. Fireman Jesse H. Hicks, 53, of 1247 Peachtree View Rd., NW, was overcome by smoke and treated at Grady.

Walls of the building started caving in shortly before 8 p.m.

The firemen climbed on the roofs of three adjacent apartment buildings and after four hours gave word that other buildings in the Briar Hill Apartments group were no longer in danger.

Fire Chief Floyd M. Honea said, "When we got there the smoke was so thick that we could not get inside the building."

The firemen were still pouring water on the fire after midnight.

Mr. Meyer, father of Sylvan Meyer, editor of the Gainesville Daily Times, said he received a call from a neighbor over the phone in his automobile. Mr. Meyer is general manager of a wholesale firm. "I got home as quickly as I could," he said, but he was too late to get anything from the house.

Another resident was Mrs. M. A. Greenblatt, widow of the author of "Ramblin Wreck from Georgia Tech."

Other residents were Morris Abelman, president of Puritan Mills, feed mills and building materials firm, and Mrs. Abelman; I. G. Ely, partner in the I. G. Ely & Co., wholesale novelty firm, and Mrs. Ely, and Mrs. Herman Gross.

Senate Panel Okays Road Aid for Cities

By CHARLES MOORE

The Senate Highway Committee Wednesday approved a bill to direct the State Highway Department to spend as much money, on a per mile basis, on maintaining highways in cities as they do outside.

Legislators from municipal centers hailed the bill as a measure to give cities much needed financial relief.

The Senate bill waters down a House bill that called for the highway department to maintain all state highways that go through cities of over 5,000 population.

(The highway department now maintains its roads through cities under 5,000.)

Appearing in opposition to the House bill that was pending in the Senate were State highway deparment officials and a county commissioner.

"I'm speaking frankly as a county commissioner," said John Edwards of Troup County. "I don't think it'd help rural counties."

Edwards said the highway department is not adequately maintaining roads as it is and to maintain highways in cities would take away money from rural counties.

M. L. Shadburn, state highway engineer, said to bring the state's highways into first class shape would cost $40,000,000 and the department now receives only $9,000,000 for maintenance.

Shadburn and Benton Odom, highway treasurer, said they didn't like the House bill and the department didn't have the money to do the job.

Sen. Charlie Brown of Atlanta, addressing the Senate group, said the House bill "not only was right in principle but is a good thing."

W. E. George, executive secretary of the Georgia Assn. of Municipalities, pointed out the majority of taxpayers live in cities in the state.

"The people in our cities in Georgia are paying more and getting less than in any other state in the Union," George said.

"FAIR PLAY"

Rep. Wilson Brooks of Atlanta said the bill was a matter of "fair play" in that it would treat larger counties the same as smaller ones.

The Senate passed without debate or opposition a House resolution to appoint a study committee to examine laws relating to cooperative communities such as the bi-racial farm colony, Koinonia, near Americus. The measure was described privately by one of the committee members who passed it out as "an innocuous little resolution which lets a committee of lawyers see if we have adequate laws against people bombing themselves."

In rapid order the Senate also approved a House resolution to name a bridge across Turkey Creek near Allentown E. Cuyler Adams bridge for a retired mail carrier; passed a House resolution to hang a picture of Herman E. Talmadge in the Capitol; authorized the commissioner of agriculture to establish educational exhibits at fairs.

On motion of Sen. Charlie Brown of Atlanta, the Senate passed a House resolution which would permit the state to sell a small tract of property on the Western and Atlantic Railroad near the river. Sen. Brown said the land had not been used since 1948 and is needed by the Sonoco plant, whose property adjoins it, for expansion. He said the property would be sold on a bid basis.

JEKYLL TOLL

Also unopposed was a resolution introduced by the Glynn County delegation asking the toll bridge authority to allow annual rates on the Sidney Lanier bridge to Jekyll Island. The motion stated annual rates would aid in the development of the island. The measure has already been passed by the House.

The Senate Rules Committee Wednesday approved a House bill that would make it easier for the state Democratic Party to bolt the national party in a presidential election.

The bill would remove the names of the national party's nominee from the ballot and leave only the names of the Georgia presidential electors.

The Senate committee, however, tagged on an amendment that would limit the effectiveness of the bill for four years. "Otherwise that's permanently turning your electors loose," said Senator Peyton Hawes of Elberton.

ORDINARIES' RETIREMENT

A House bill providing retirement benefits for ordinaries was postponed to Thursday.

Among other bills passed by the Senate were bills that would:

Increase the pensions of the "34 to 38" widows of Confederate soldiers from $75 to $110 a month.

Permit juries to reduce the punishment of certain felonies to misdemeanors.

EMPLOYMENT AIDS

Establish a State Port Claims Act.

The Port Claims Act would make the state liable in court for damages done by a state employee provided the damage is under $5,000.

Sen. Peyton Hawes of Elberton, speaking against the bill, said it would open the gates for a "flood of suits."

Sen. Bobby Lee Cook of Summerville said the act would permit ports to handle suits that are now being settled by a legislative committee.

Self-Insuring For State Is Given Up

A measure to let the state insure its own property apparently is dead for this session.

Chairman Howard Overby of the House State of Republic Committee, which heard testimony for and against the bill Tuesday, said Wednesday the bill's author "called me this morning and said he did not wish to push it further."

Rep. Fred Walker of Lowndes County, who appeared in behalf of the measure Tuesday, ran into considerable opposition on the measure from insurance agents and from Insurance Commissioner Zack D. Cravey.

Walker contended the bill would help save money on insurance. Cravey said the proposal amounted to "creeping socialism."

Meanwhile, DeKalb Rep. James A. Mackay said he had been given some erroneous information which he gave to reporters about the 1954 gubernatorial election outcome in Brooks County, home of a legislator who made a successful motion before the committee Tuesday to kill Mackay's bill to revise the county unit system.

Mackay said he had been erroneously told that M. E. Thompson carried Brooks County in 1954, when Gov. Marvin Griffin actually took the two-unit county. Brooks is the home of Rep. John Sheffield, who made the motion to kill Mackay's bill.

Active Voters Plan Forum on Legislature

An "evaluation" of work done by the 1958 General Assembly will be the topic for discussion of the Active Voters at a public forum at 8 p.m. Thursday at Central Congregational Church.

Hamilton Lokey, former Fulton County representative, will be moderator of the discussion. Panel members will include James Mackay of DeKalb County and "Muggsy" Smith of Fulton, both legislators; James O'Hear Sanders, chairman Active Voters legislative committee, and Morris Abram, Atlanta attorney.

Bill Defines Reward For First Oil Well

The Senate passed a bill Wednesday to stop the "fussing" over the state grant of $250,000 for Georgia's first commercial oil well that hasn't even been drilled.

Sen. W. Ellison Dunn of Donalsonville told Senate members a crew is getting ready to drill an oil well in Seminole County "and they are already fussing over who is going to get the money."

The Senate bill would give $50,000 to the land owner, $100,000 to the company financing the well, $87,500 to the driller and $12,500 to the workmen who bring in the first commercial oil well in the state.

ATLANTA AREA BILLS

Police Uniforms Plan May Kill Holidays Bill

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Opposition to a proposed method of financing a $150 increase in Atlanta policemen's uniform allowances threatened Wednesday to cause defeat of a bill which also gives policemen seven holidays yearly.

The Fulton County delegation Wednesday morning decided to give the uniforms allowance increase in lieu of a controversial overtime pay proposal hotly protested by Mayor Hartsfield and other city officials.

At the same time the legislators decided to finance the uniforms allowance increase—which would give officers $250 yearly for uniforms—by adding $1 to all Atlanta Municipal Court fines over $3.

Sen. Charlie Brown, at the request of the three House members, added the provisions in an amendment to a House-approved bill to give the officers the holidays. The financing proposal was added as the delegation's answer to the city's previous claim that it lacked the money to raise policemen's salaries.

The amended bill was approved by the Senate County and Municipal Governments Committee and will be voted on by the Senate Thursday. Following passage it would be transmitted back to the House for agreement with the amendment.

The $1 addition to fines proposal brought protests from the mayor, from policemen who are seeking the raise and from DeKalb County legislators. R. D. (Doc) Sims, spokesman for the officers, asked the senator to remove this from the amendment.

"That's bad," Sims said. "If that's put on, policemen will have to fight every drunk they pick up because he will accuse them of arresting him just to help pay for his uniform allowances."

LEFT TO HOUSE

Brown declined to remove the provision, saying the delegation had agreed on it. He said it could be removed in the House.

In the House, all three members of the DeKalb delegation—which must pass on legislative matters affecting Atlanta—are opposed to the increase in fines.

Meanwhile, the House State of Republic Committee approved Sen. Brown's voting machine regulations bill, although Chairman Howard Overby told the committee the local legislators were not in agreement on the bill.

Both Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith and some members of the DeKalb delegation have indicated opposition to the measure drawn by attorney William G. MacRae. They indicated the bill will either be sent back to the committee or allowed to die in the House.

SIX TO GRIFFIN

Meanwhile, a number of local bills were approved in last-minute actions in the House and Senate. Six House-approved measures cleared the Senate and are ready for the governor's signature, while two Senate measures applying to Fulton were passed in the House.

The measures approved by the Senate were changes in East Point and College Park charters, a changing of Jonesboro's limits, an amendment to Atlanta's charter and an amendment to Fulton pension systems.

The Senate bills approved in the House were bills reinstating Fulton tax arbitration laws that were inadvertenly repealled and setting up a separate office of clerk of the Fulton Criminal Court.

The House approved four other local measures and sent them to the Senate. They are bills to give Sol. Gen. Paul Webb's investigators arresting powers, to raise the solicitor's pay to a total of $20,000 yearly, to amend firemen's pensions and to set up a commission to study possible merger of Atlanta and Fulton schools.

Vandiver's Voter Curbs Win, 134-40, in House of parliamentary maneuvering between the Vandiver and Griffin factions over the voter registration question.

Rep. Robert L. Russell of Barrow, Vandiver's brother-in-law, moved early in the day to take the voter registration bill from the House State of the Republic Committee, where it has been languishing since early in the session, and putting it in the Rules Committee.

82-50 VOTE

The House backed Russell's move, over the opposition of administration forces, by a vote of 82 to 50.

Shortly after noon, the Rules Committee approved the measure and put it on the calendar to be considered at the call of Speaker Marvin Moate.

When Moate called up the bill for debate, Rep. William R. Killian of Glynn protested it was out of order because it had been offered as a substitute for the Griffin voter bills on Tuesday. The substitute was tabled along with the governor's proposal.

However, Moate overruled Killian's objection and directed the House to proceed with the Vandiver-backed bill.

During the day, Hawkins offered the $1 registration fee as a "little amendment." The poll tax was a major feature of Griffin's defeated measure.

PUT TEETH INTO MEASURE

Hawkins said his amendment would put teeth into the registration bill and said he would support the measure if the amendment were adopted.

"You will have done something for this bill and you will have done something for the counties of Georgia that have a problem with Negro registration," Hawkins declared.

Rep. Frank S. Twitty of Mitchell, a Vandiver leader in the House, took the floor to oppose Hawkins' poll tax proposals to plug for passage of the bill.

"There has been some misapprehension on how the lieutenant governor and his friends stand on voter registration," Twitty said.

"I want to tell you here and now that all of us favor as stringent voter qualifications as possible," he said.

But Twitty said he did not "believe in taxing a man's right to vote." He said repeal of the poll tax had been a good thing for the state.

"Let's tighten voter qualifications, but let's not put a tax on a man's right to vote," he said.

REGISTRARS' WEAPON

He said the bill would give local registrars the "weapon" they need to combat "insidious organizations" such as the NAACP by keeping off the registration rolls those "who ought not to be there."

"Let's give the local registrars the weapon they need to preserve the Southern way of life as we know it in Georgia," Twitty said.

Rep. Raymond M. Reed of Cobb County warned that the NAACP would "school" Negroes to enable them to pass the 30-question test proposed by the bill.

"But who is going to school the poor white people who can't pass the test?" Reed asked. "If you want to play into the hands of the NAACP, this test will do it."

Rep. William M. Campbell of Walker County warned that measures such as the voting bill would "drive the Negroes into the NAACP."

"We haven't got the Negro problem in our county that some of you have," Campbell said. "We control them and we don't have to come to the Legislature and ask for help to do it."

Rep. W. K. Smith of Bryan urged against any change in present voting laws.

approved by the State Corporation Commission. Also, the 1928 laws set up machinery for an annual review of the rates.

Acting under the new laws, the late Judge Louis S. Epes of the corporation commission set forth a rate formula that is still used. The Aetna Insurance Co., and about 160 others, fought the rate formula up to the Virginia Supreme Court and lost. It hasn't been contested since.

It is the Epes formula that has produced fire insurance rate reductions in Virginia almost every year since 1928.

FORMULA GIVEN

The formula can be briefly stated this way:

For each dollar of income, the companies are allowed 50.25 cents for fire losses, 40 cents for expenses (of which 20 cents is the agent's commission), 5 cents for profits, and 2.25 cents for catastrophes.

The 2.25 cents goes into the company's surplus awaiting the day when—experience has shown—it will be needed to pay claims on a "conflagration" — which is the Bureau of Insurance's term for a million-dollar-plus fire.

Annually the Bureau of Insurance reviews fire losses and insurance company income for the preceding five years. If losses don't add up to 50.25 per cent of income—and they seldom have since 1928—a rate reduction is ordered by the corporation commission.

So there won't be any misunderstanding over what is income, the formula defines it as:

EARNED PREMIUMS

Earned premiums, plus interest earned on 55 per cent of the unearned premium reserve. (Unearned premiums are premiums paid more than six months in advance—or premiums for insurance on which the company will not incur any risk for six months or more. The corporation commission allows the companies to invest up to 55 per cent of the unearned premium reserve.)

The main thing in all this is the permissible profit of 5 per cent. However, in practice the companies usually earn more.

In an era of declining fire losses, as Virginia is experiencing, losses may be less than 50 per cent. And it will be a year before the corporation commission catches up and reduces rates.

In May of last year, for example, the corporation commission reduced fire rates by a total of $700,000 when it found that losses had declined and profits had averaged about 3 per cent above the permissible 5 per cent.

POCKET EXCESS

Rates were reduced, but the companies had pocketed the excess earnings. But earnings of 8 per cent are not greater than public utilities, for example, have been allowed in some recent cases.

Under the Virginia system of annual examination of insurance company books, officials feel, profits can't soar much above the permissible level for long.

Virginia's Commissioner of Insurance, T. Nelson Parker, said yesterday:

"We have, I guess, the best and strictest regulated state in the country. The commission keeps its finger on rates pretty well." Parker said the Virginia fire rates are lower than any Southern state east of the Mississippi.

VIRGINIA LOWER

For example, Virginia rates on four selected property classes of the National Board of Fire Underwriters are as follows. All are for frame dwellings with approved roofs:

Class 3—13 cents per $100 of insurance. Class 6—14 cents. Class 10—26 cents. Farm (owner occupied)—45 cents.

The rates for those classes for the years 1952, 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956 in that annual order were:

Class 6 — 18 cents, 17 cents, 17 cents, 14 cents, 14 cents.

Class 10 — 26 cents each year.

Farm — 45 cents each year.

Total premiums written for fire and extended coverage, $40,716,375. Total losses, $18,130,979.

Total premiums written for fire alone, $29,303,511. Total losses, $11,299,861.

Virginia's Bureau of Insurance is a 50-person division of the corporation commission. Insurance Commissioner Parker is directly responsible to the three judges of the corporation commission, and he serves at their pleasure.

Virginia has had only three insurance commissioners in the past 50 years. Judges of the corporation commission, likewise, enjoy long tenure. The obvious result is to remove them from political pressures.

STAFF OF EXPERTS

Working under the insurance commissioner is a staff of experts — an actuary, four rate analysts, eight auditors, several claims investigators, and the state fire marshal who investigates arson and administers fire safety laws.

Those personnel are in addition to the bigger staff of the corporation commission, also available for insurance rate cases as well as other regulatory matters.

To finance the Bureau of Insurance, state law annually assesses each insurance company doing business in Virginia one-tenth of one per cent of its written premiums during the preceding year.

ASSESS COMPANIES

Insurance companies are assessed for another agency too—the Virginia Insurance Rating Bureau. The rating bureau performs inspection services for the companies and is required to file annual rate manuals with the corporation commission.

Contained in the rate manual are any rate revisions the insurance companies seek. The corporation commission, acting on recommendations of the Bureau of Insurance or beyond those recommendations, may fix rates at different levels than sought by the companies.

Public hearings are held on any rate increase sought by the companies in the corporation commission courtroom.

Peace Perfume Machine Greeted Warily in House

Speaker Marvin Moate named a highly informal committee of one Wednesday to study a machine alleged to dispense "peace-making" perfume at public gatherings.

Rep. George T. Bagby of Paulding read to the House a letter he said Gov. Griffin received from an international perfume concern, advertising a machine which dispenses sweet-smelling bubbles having a "drastic calming effect on a man's 'anger mechanism' . . . (and creating) reactions of admiration and friendship, rather than dislike and enmity."

"Mr. Speaker," Bagby declared, "I'd like to have a committee go to New York and see if we can get one of these machines and get it back down here for the next session."

"I name the gentleman from Paulding as a committee of one," Moate announced.

"To serve without pay," several House members chimed in.

Boy, 7, Dies In Refrigerator

GAFFNEY, S.C., Feb. 19 (UP)—A 7-year-old boy suffocated here this afternoon in an old refrigerator in the yard of his home.

The victim was Robert Upchurch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Upchurch.

The child was found six hours after his parents discovered him missing at about noon today. His father opened the door of the abandoned refrigerator and found the body of his son.

Lancaster's Appeal Defeats Wirz Statue

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Professing a "reverence for the Confederacy but a hatred for needless cruelty," a 70-year-old ex-school teacher rose up in the Georgia House to make his maiden speech Wednesday and decisively defeated a bill to repair the monument to the commandant of Andersonville prison.

Rep. Ulysses S. Lancaster, grandson of a Confederate veteran and retired postmaster of Gray, trembled slightly as he approached the microphone to oppose a bill introduced by Rep. Robert Stephens of Clarke County to repair a monument of Capt. Henri Wirz.

"I'm surprised at myself for getting up here," the elderly neophyte among legislators confessed, smiling timidly back of his gold-framed glasses.

CRUEL AS ANY

But his voice was strong as he spoke out against Wirz as a man "abhorred by the Confederate veterans themselves" and "as cruel as any man that ever lived." Applause swept the House as he sat down—and the vote was 44 to 68 on the passage of the bill.

Rep. Stephens in a stirring appeal for the bill, which was sponsored by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, presented Wirz as the much-maligned victim of Yankee rumors. He said the German-Swiss commandant of the prison ran as humane a prison as was possible under the difficulties confronting him and that his execution after the war was a miscarriage of justice. The monument which he sought to repair was erected in the town of Andersonville in 1909, he said.

Rep. W. R. Smith of Bryan County interrupted Stephens with a question.

READ ABOUT

"Is this the fellow I've read about?"

Stephens answered that it was.

"Well, I think we can give him a monument without all this talk!"

Stephens sat down amid laughter and Rep. Lancaster took his place at the microphone.

"I regret having to come here to speak against this measure," he said. "I'm a grandson of a Confederate veteran . . . I was brought up to honor Lee and Jackson and Gordon. I remember when we used to celebrate Memorial Day—April 26—and the veterans came out dressed in their gray and how they honored that gray."

He told of their reminiscing, the playing of "Dixie" and the occasional Rebel yell and he added: "But when they spoke of Wirz and Andersonville it was with horror. The half has never been told about Wirz."

KILLED YANKEES

Rep. W. D. Ballard of Newton asked facetiously if Capt. Wirz hadn't "killed more Yankees than anybody else."

"It's not a question with me of who killed Yankees," said Rep. Lancaster. "It's a question of the cruel way he did. He denied them water. . . . They prayed 'Water, water, water!' And one day there came a cloudburst and a spring sprang up in the enclosure and it's still there today."

Rep. William Parker of Appling asked if Rep. Lancaster didn't think the "14,000 cold slabs and the six feet of stone fence" around the cemetery constitute "monument enough" to Wirz.

"I do," said Rep. Lancaster, "and I ask you gentlemen not to construct another."

HELP POSTMEN

DeKalb Folk Cooperate On Numbers

DeKalb County residents "are very cooperative" in a project now under way to change 44,000 street numbers and names in the county to eliminate duplication and confusion, a post office official said Wednesday.

W. C. Lovejoy, Decatur postmaster, said his postmen have reported that a high percentage of residents have already changed the numbers on their mailboxes and houses in line with new ones assigned by the county planning department.

Major trouble so far, Lovejoy said, has been with people who are evidently only trying to help. He said they leave their old number displayed along with the new.

"This is causing more trouble and confusion than help," Lovejoy commented. He said it would be better if people would get new numbers "as soon as possible" and then get rid of the old ones.

The change-over went into effect Jan. 1, with a "grace period" to end July 1.

LIVERPOOL, England, Feb. 19 (AP)—John McKeown, 36, has been unable to sit down since 1956. A cotton bale which fell while being loaded aboard his truck permanently stiffened one of his hips. 2 Ex-Smyrna Policemen Each Get 5-10 Years in Shooting

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19 (AP)—Two brothers, both former Smyrna policemen, were convicted in superior court here today of shooting a Columbus man on Aug. 29.

The pair, Dewey and Howard Southers, were each sentenced to five to 10 years in prison.

James Ray Grantham, the man who was shot, testified against the pair, identifying them as the men who had compelled him to accompany them at pistol point and shot him in the head when he tried to escape from their car.

Two police officers from Smyrna testified that the two defendants admitted the day after the incident that one of them had shot "the man at Columbus" but accidentally."

Both defendants denied any knowledge of the crime, saying in unsworn statements they didn't know what they were being tried for.

However, the two fellow officers told how the younger brother had vowed to kill this Columbus "boy" his wife-to-be "had some trouble with."

6 Coeds Are Suspended For Snowbound Party

Six coeds have been suspended from the University of Georgia for attending the snowbound fraternity house party in the north Georgia mountains last weekend, Mrs. Edith Stallings, dean of women, said Wednesday at Athens.

The party, staged by a Georgia Tech fraternity, was isolated at Lake Winfield Scott by weekend snowstorms.

The girls were informed of their dismissal when they returned to school Tuesday. The six were not identified.

They were suspended for violations of a university rule prohibiting coeds from "attending out-of-town off campus house parties during a school quarter," Mrs. Stallings said. "And that means remote places.

"They are all nice girls. We felt dismissal was in their best interests. This is not for punishment, it is for instruction," Dean Stallings said. "As far as we know, they did nothing wrong at the party."

At least one coed would have graduated at the end of this quarter in March. However, Mrs. Stallings said the girl's academic standing was not a consideration of the dismissal. All six may re-enter school at the beginning of the spring quarter, Mrs. Stallings said.

At least one girl said she had her parents' permission to attend the party. "Parents can't give permission to violate university regulations," Mrs. Stallings said. She said that the fact that the party was snowbound had nothing to do with the suspension.

3 Children Die In Flames at Indian Springs

Constitution State News Service

INDIAN SPRINGS, Feb. 19. Three young Negro children were burned to death Tuesday night at Indian Springs as wind-swept flames destroyed their frame house while their parents were viewing television programs at a neighbor's home.

Annie Ruth Colvard, 6; Helen Colvard, 8, and Alonza Colvard, 2, perished when the flames trapped them and their sister, Fannie, 11, and brother, Eulus Colvard Jr., 9, in a bedroom.

The two older children, Fannie and Eulus Jr., escaped. They suffered painful but not serious burns.

8 Indicted In 'Biggest' Liquor Ring

An Ellijay wholesale grocer and seven others have been indicted on charges of conspiring in what federal agents said Wednesday was the biggest moonshine liquor ring ever to operate in Georgia.

A U.S. grand jury charged the Ellijay Feed and Supply Co., Inc., and its president, Garland Cochran of Ellijay, with making false reports on the sales of more than four and a half million pounds of sugar and tons of other supplies used in the manufacture of non-taxpaid liquor.

The reports, required of certain wholesalers by the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit of the Internal Revenue Service in a Southwide effort to curb bootlegging, listed sales to persons who do not exist or persons who had no connections with the sales, federal agents said.

Indicted with Cochran were his father, Claude Cochran, and Garland's younger brother, Guy Paul Cochran, both of Ellijay. Others named as defendants were James Earl Holt, Clifford Lanning and Charles Hugh Walker, all of Ellijay, Otto Hyde of Canton and Charles E. Ridley of Dahlonega.

Sixteen others were named as co-conspirators, but were not indicted as defendants.

Fire Wave Laid To Attempts To Thaw Pipes

Fire calls, most of them resulting from attempts to thaw out frozen water pipes, kept the fire department on the run Wednesday.

One explosion and fire was reported in a service station at 127 Northside Dr., NW. Patrolmen R. B. Bibb and G. P. Hicks said two employes, Charlie Jordan and Melvin Sullivan, were cleaning the station grease rack with a flammable liquid.

Fumes evidently were set off by a radiant heater, officers said. They added the resulting blast knocked out windows and caused a fire in the grease pit. Jordan was slightly burned about the face, officers said.

The sprinkler system turned on in the dining room of the Georgian Hotel at Luckie and Cone Street, NW, bringing firemen on the run, patrolman G. E. Wallace said. Wallace said a sprinkler system also went off in a building at 172-176 Marietta St., NW, but caused little damage.

Pay Boost Is Fought By Griffin

of the Griffin administration leaders supported the measure.

At his press conference, Griffin was asked why he opposes the raise.

"Because we are facing a declining economy and we're going to have to tighten the belt in a lot of places," he replied.

Immediately after the conference, Griffin met with constitutional officers and discussed the state's finances.

He told newsmen that if the state cut spending in some places while raising legislators' pay "folks wouldn't look on it with any great favor."

Griffin said he has stated all along that "when expenditures exceed collections, we would cut the cloth to fit the suit."

CONFER WITH OTHERS

He said he would have to confer with the revenue commissioner, the state auditor and "others" before deciding whether an across-the-board cut in spending is in order for state departments.

The governor stated Tuesday that he is opposed to any pay raises.

Meanwhile, he already has signed into law a bill that raises the salaries of Pardon and Parole Board members by $3,600 each. It is an administration bill.

And there are three other pay-raising bills, including an administration measure that would cost about $250,000 annually, now pending in the Legislature.

STATE TROOPERS

A House bill now awaiting the governor's signature grants across-the-board and longevity pay increases for state troopers. Rep. George Bagby of Paulding said this administration measure will cost the state an estimated $250,000 annually.

Also pending in the Legislature are a House bill increasing the parks director's pay from $8,600 to $11,000 annually, and a Senate bill increasing the pay of the corrections department director from $9,000 to $12,000 annually.

Hawkins said neither of these measures originated with the administration, but he said the administration has supported them.

EXTRA TIME

Hawkins said that legislators often spend a lot of time working on legislative matters while the General Assembly is not in session. "And we don't get paid for it," he declared.

"We have some Superior Court judges living at home and drawing $12,000 a year and not even working 40 days out of the year," he said. "I don't see why legislators shouldn't be paid at least $1,600 a year for working 40 full days and putting in a lot of extra work during the year."

43 Houses Burn In Line of Duty

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 19 (AP). Herbert C. Johnson has burned down 43 houses this year. And there are more to come.

Johnson, of Huntington, N.Y., is supervisor of the Suffolk County fire school which trains some 25,000 volunteer fire fighters on Long Island.

Old farmhouses and barns that must be leveled to make way for new housing developments are burned down by the school as a service to the landowner. Johnson's students get in some good training during the burning.

Sought Aid In TV Case, Loser Says

By JAY WALZ

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—House investigators heard testimony today that "pressures" to win a valuable Miami television channel were not one sided.

Col. A. Frank Katzentine, a losing contender, acknowledged that he, too, sought help in "high-places" in Washington to bring about a favorable decision of the Federal Communications Commission.

Col. Katzentine testified that, while the Miami decision was pending, he talked twice with Richard A. Mack, who was then a newly appointed member of the commission. Last week the subcommittee investigating the case heard charges that Mack had received checks totalling $2,650 from a lawyer working for the ultimate winner.

The subcommittee produced a letter indicating the readiness of Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) to talk favorably of Col. Katzentine to members of the FCC.

Another letter, put on the record, named Vice President Nixon as "the right man" in the Eisenhower administration to approach.

The hearing produced no evidence, however, that this plan went any further than a conversation with "Bob King," identified as a former administrative assistant to the Vice President. Nixon is out of the city, and his office tonight had no comment on the reference to the vice president at the House hearing.

Col. Katzentine, a Miami lawyer and radio station owner, told the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight he was "dumbfounded" when the FCC overruled its hearing examiner and gave Miami's television channel 10 to someone else.

The examiner recommended in favor of WKAT, Inc., Col. Katzentine's radio station. But 18 months later, the commission voted 4 to 2 to grant a channel license to Public Services Television, Inc., a subsidiary of National Airlines.

Associated Press Wirephoto
"DUMBFOUNDED"
Col. Katzentine

However, the adverse decision, when it came, was not news to him, the colonel testified. He had been hearing reports and rumors "from everywhere" that the commission decision would go against him. And it was for that reason, he took steps to obtain support for his cause in Washington.

He worked principally through Sen. Kefauver, an old friend whom he supported for the presidential nomination in 1956, and Paul A. Porter, his Washington attorney.

The letter in which Vice President Nixon's name was mentioned was written by Downey Rice, a Washington attorney who once served as a counsel for the old Senate Crime Investigating Committee headed by Kefauver.

The letter dated Oct. 13, 1955, and addressed to Daniel P. Sullivan of the Miami Crime Commission, said it was "generally agreed that the place to 'cry wolf' was as high up in the circle of Eisenhower associates as possible." (Full details of letter will be found in story at right.)

Col. Katzentine, a stocky former Air Force officer, told the subcommittee that "bad news" reaching him all through 1955 and 1956 was that three commissioners Robert E. Lee, George C. McConnaughey (then chairman) and John C. Doerfer — were "in the bag" for the airline subsidiary. He testified he heard, too, that Mack, a Florida Democrat just appointed by Eisenhower, was "pledged" to the subsidiary.

FCC Probe Witness Paints Picture of Big Deals in High Places

By THOMAS W. HAGAN
Special to The Constitution

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—A cynical axiom to justify influence in government goes something like this: "A politician is a man who is held upright by equal pressures from all sides all at once."

A graphic picture of one attempt to exercise tremendous pressures on a member of a federal regulatory agency, the Federal Communications Commission, was introduced yesterday by a witness in the congressional investigation of the now famous Miami Channel 10 case. The channel was awarded by the FCC in February 1957 to a National Airlines subsidiary and the station is now in operation.

The House Committee on Legislative Oversight, which heard earlier in an affidavit from the former mayor of Miami Beach, A. Frank Katzentine, of an alleged attempt to upset an examiner's ruling in his favor, heard later in the day of what Katzentine's attorney, Paul Porter was attempting in his behalf.

Porter, a former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was reported to have had the thought to "get to" Vice President Nixon in behalf of his client.

Katzentine in an affidavit entered in the record of the hearings had said a "trusted friend" informed him that Col. Gordon Moore, brother-in-law of Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, had "engineered" the application for National's subsidiary. Katzentine cited this and other interventions with the FCC and said he was interested in doing all he could to counter such actions in the case.

However, a letter in the Katzentine files was then called to the former mayor's attention. He said he didn't remember the letter but presumed he had read it since it was in his files. It was from Downey Rice, a former FBI agent and friend of Katzentine, and was addressed to Daniel P. Sullivan, another former FBI agent and operating director of the crime commission of greater Miami. Rice is now an attorney in Washington associated with Porter in the Katzentine case.

Rice recited to Sullivan what was being done in the Channel 10 case in behalf of Katzentine, who was and is a leading supporter of the crime commission. The interest that the matter was presumed to have for Sullivan was not explained. Rice reported on a conference in Washington:

"It was generally agreed that the place to 'cry wolf' was as high up in the circle of Eisenhower associates as possible. It has occurred to Paul Porter to get to Nixon through having Eddie Rickenbacker contact Bill Rogers in the department (Bill Rogers in the Department of Justice, a close friend of Nixon and now Attorney General Rogers).

"I agreed that Nixon was the right man but thought we might get the story more satisfactorily through Bob King, Nixon's administrative assistant and a former agent. (King is no longer with Nixon, having been replaced by William Key.) I had done some work with Nixon, Flip Flanagan and Bob Lee back in 1950, and felt that Nixon would give some weight to what I might have to say.

"After digesting the problem we decided that the likeliest approach was through Bob King, and I set it up and saw King for over an hour in Nixon's office yesterday.

"At the outset we knew that the problem had to be presented carefully. It had to be strong enough to make Nixon do something and yet we didn't want to bring about a reaction anywhere which would militate against Frank (Katzentine) if Baker (George T. Baker, president of National) was knocked out.

"King was most cordial and attentive. He took notes and seemed to grasp the problem and see it our way. I think the fact that he was told that (Sen.) Smathers had the story had the effect of forcing some action. Obviously, they can't afford to risk exposure by Democrats of an 'influence' deal.

"Naturally my presentation was in line with the facts as I understood them, including where our story was weak and perhaps even encompassed some rationalization.

"He understood that Frank was not only a Democrat, but even worse, a "Kefauver Democrat." I also made it plain that I was fond of Frank and in representing his interest I was biased.

"Don't get the idea I didn't make it a strong case. I think I did. But at the same time I tried to answer his arguments so that they would wind up in the middle with a rather hot potato in their laps and be compelled to pass the word to the commission to make sure that the ultimate findings were in line with the facts.

"The session was concluded with King candidly stating that it was a serious question, that he would present it to Nixon and he knew that Nixon would know what to do. My guess, and it is only a guess, is that Nixon will telephone to his friend, Bob Lee (member of the FCC) and tell him that there was some loaded rumors afloat and that Lee would do well to carefully consider any action being taken by the commission with an eye to the probability that, if said action was questionable, prompt, unfavorable publicity could be expected.

"No attempt was made to arrange with King to let us know what action was taken. It did not appear that this was in good taste, but I feel certain that we are going to get immediate results. On my return, I briefed Paul Porter and he said he would call Frank immediately to keep him posted."

Vice President Nixon is now in California and his administrative assistant, Key, was not immediately available for comment.

Truman Gets Award, Plans World Tour

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19 (AP) — Former President Truman tonight received a unique award for his humanity and in a speech of less than 10 minutes disclosed that he soon would make a speaking tour in the interests of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

Truman had been expected to deliver a fiery speech to the Golden Slipper Square Club, which bestowed the honor upon him. The grapevine had it that he meant to let fly at the Eisenhower administration in new headline phrases.

NO COPIES

Newsmen were advised that there would be no advance copies of his talk; that interviews would not be permitted; that no written questions would be passed along to him.

It turned out, however, to be one of Truman's shortest, mildest and perhaps most emotional talks.

His award is a large golden world, created for him alone. The citation that goes with it pays tribute to Truman as "citizen, soldier, president and world statesman, who has devoted his life to an effort to bring about the ideal of a golden world of lasting peace."

HIGH PRAISE

To that, and to other high praise from Gov. George M. Leader and Mayor Richardson Dilworth, both Democrats, the former President said:

"When all this hullabaloo is over, I should be happy if in the course of history it would be found that I had made some small contribution to the welfare of the greatest republic in the history of the world."

Without specifying an itinerary or going into detail, Truman said he would begin his human fellowship speaking tour "after I have completed my political commitments in Washington."

He returned to Washington tonight.

16 Found Dead in Wreckage of U.S. Plane on Vesuvius

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 19 (AP) — The burned and scattered wreckage of a U.S. Air Force C47 transport plane, missing for four days, was found today high on the rugged slope of volcanic Mount Vesuvius.

Patrols that battled through a heavy snow storm to reach the wreckage said there were no survivors among the 16 persons aboard. There were 15 Air Force officers and men from Ramstein-Landstuhl Air Base, Germany, and one seaman of the U.S.S. Tripoli.

The plane vanished Saturday night shortly after taking off from Naples' Capodichino Airport for Athens. It was on a flight from its home base to Istanbul and fears were expressed that it had been forced to land in Communist Albania.

The wreckage was found 3,800 feet up Vesuvius, about 200 feet from the top of the volcano which overlooks Naples Bay.

A search plane first spotted the wreckage about noon today after four days of fruitless ground, sea and air search impeded by fog, rain and snow.

Patrols of U.E. servicemen, Italian soldiers and carabinieri reached the wreckage four hours after it was sighted. They reported the bodies of all 16 men had been identified. A surgeon said death apparently was instantaneous.

Officials declined to venture a theory on the cause of the crash except that the weather was bad and the pilot, Capt. Martin S. Schwartz of Ashland, Ky., had not previously flown from Capodichino field.

5 on Freighter Saved; 20 Drowned

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 19 (AP)— Search ships today rescued two more survivors and recovered the bodies of 20 crewmen from the sunken Italian freighter Bonitas. Two others were missing and three were rescued earlier.

The Bonitas' entire 27-man crew who had abandoned their sinking ship in raging seas and a blinding snowstorm 120 miles off the North Carolina coast last night, were thrown into the water when their lifeboat capsized as the freighter President Adams went alongside in a rescue attempt.

Despite the 20-foot seas and falling snow, the water temperature was a relatively mild 65 degrees.

The Coast Guard cutter Chilula reported tonight that the destroyer escort Lester had picked up two additional survivors at 3:40 p.m., and was heading for Norfolk. The men, identified as Chief Officer Albo Cardilo of Trieste and machinist Guiseppi Valinti were reported in need of medical attention.

Chalker Told To List Paper's Stockholders

A member of a Senate investigating committee Wednesday called for State Highway Chairman Roy F. Chalker to supply a list of stockholders in his newspaper.

But Chalker is out of town on an "inspection tour" and his office said he is not due back until next Monday.

The request for the stockholders in Chalker's political weekly, The Georgia Recorder, was made by Sen. George F. Jackson of Gray, a member of a Senate committee investigating the Rural Roads Authority, which Chalker heads.

Sen. Carl Sanders of Augusta, chairman of the committee, called a meeting for 2 p.m. Thursday to receive the requested information and to hear further testimony from Chalker.

It was reported earlier in the week that Chalker had asked all highway contractors who own stock in his paper to sell it back to him. A question of "propriety" is involved, he said.

Husband Seized In Slayings of Bride, In-Law

A 49-year-old man sought in the Feb. 10 slayings of his bride and brother-in-law at Ringgold has been arrested at Louisville, Ky., the Atlanta FBI office said Wednesday.

Daniel B. Coovert, alias Reed Frank Munger, was taken into custody at the home of a relative, N. R. Johnson, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said.

Daniel Coovert

The FBI and Catoosa County Sheriff J. D. Stewart said Coovert was charged with fatally wounding his bride of six weeks, Mrs. Frances Miles Whitehead Munger, and her brother, Willard E. Miles.

Johnson said a federal warrant for Coovert, a native of Harrodsburg, Ky., was obtained Feb. 11.

2 Indicted in 2 Cable Deaths

Two men were indicted on charges of manslaughter Wednesday in connection with the Jan. 13 deaths of a DeKalb County woman and her 2-year-old daughter when their car struck a cable stretched across a highway.

The two men were identified in the indictment as Loy Pruitt and Claude Elrod.

Dying as a result of injuries in the accident were Mrs. Mary Jo Smith and her daughter, Sandra, of 2732 Chamblee-Tucker road, according to police.

DeKalb Capt. E. T. Wagnon and Patrolmen C. W. Potts and L. Weinweber said Mrs. Smith was driving and Sandra was riding in the front seat when their 1953 model car struck the cable on the new Buford Highway expressway at Shallowford road.

Police said Elrod was operating a winch on a wrecker, and Pruitt was 20 feet up the road waving down traffic. They said the men were using a cable to pull a load of lumber from a stalled truck to another truck. They added the cable, stretched across a lane of the highway, was struck by Mrs. Smith's automobile and the two occupants were crushed against the front seat.

Mountain and Ports Bills Sent to Gov. Griffin

surplus property, such as the Whitehall Plantation on the Central of Georgia tract in Savannah, with the permission of the State Property Acquisition Committee, and authorize the governor to make money available for buying land and facilities for dock development.

A companion measure, taken up shortly after the bill, endorsed the report of the joint committee which had recommended state purchase of the Central of Georgia property at Savannah.

"I think those of us who have the economic interest of the state at heart know we are going to have more facilities down there," Hawkins asserted.

Twitty said he was originally inclined to be against the purchase but thought later that "we must do everything we can to build up our great state . . . we in Georgia cannot lag behind."

Opposition to the purchase was led by Rep. Henry Payton of Coweta County.

"It is not the time to expand your business property until you reach the capacity of the facilities you have," Payton declared. He said the existing docks' best customer was the federal agency shipping surplus cotton. "That day is just about past, and that's one customer they're going to lose," he added.

Nobody else is bidding on the Central facilities, Payton argued. "We can get them next year. We can get them five years from now," he said.

House action on Stone Mountain consisted simply of agreeing to the Senate amendments, which put a $1.5 million lid on the purchase price and changed the proposed Confederate Memorial authority to include a majority of constitutional officers.

The House also agreed to the Senate's amendments which:

1. Made the Senate and House committees authorized to study insurance rate increases a joint committee.

2. Revised the insurance laws study committee approved by the House so as to make a majority of the members legislators and to allow the committee to choose its chairman. The orginial House resolution named Cravey as chairman.

In approving the constitutional amendment on legislative terms, the House had to reconsider its action on the proposal on Tuesday. At that time it gave a majority approval to the measure but fell nine votes short of the required two-thirds.

The vote Tuesday was 138-39, one more than enough.

Rep. John Love of Catoosa County, author of the proposal, said it would strengthen the legislature's independence.

Under his proposal, a new legislature would be elected in the middle of a governor's four-year term. In this manner, he argued, the voters would be given an opportunity to express approval or disapproval of the governor's administration.

If approved by the Senate, the amendment would go to the voters in November.

Also passed in the House Wednesday was a bill suspending compulsory attendance in school districts where public schools are closed as a result of court integration orders.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE VISITS ATLANTA
Associate Justice Tom Clark and Mrs. Clark

Ports Files 'Altered,' Panel Says

A Senate committee investigating state port operations charged Wednesday that purchase records of the Georgia Ports Authority had been "altered" since the committee's last meeting.

The records had been in the custody of Miss Helen Schafer, purchasing and personnel director of the authority.

Miss Schafer had been asked to appear before the committee Wednesday, but instead she sent a letter of explanation, delivered by Authority Chairman Robert E. Frankenfield.

The letter, addressed to Sen. Bobby Lee Cook, committee chairman, was signed by Dr. H. E. Rollings of Savannah.

Dr. Rollings wrote that he had advised Miss Schafer not to appear at the hearing "if at all possible." The doctor wrote that Miss Schafer's mother, Mrs. Walter Schafer, has a serious heart condition which has been "made a great deal worse in recent weeks because of the associated nervous tension which she has suffered as a result of her daughter's appearance in this inquiry."

Miss Schafer, a frequent witness before Cook's committee, testified last Thursday and was unable to produce written records of bids she said she had taken on items purchased for the state docks at Savannah. She had purchase records with her at the time.

She said then that she would try to produce records of the bids at the next committee hearing.

Sam J. Gardner, authority comptroller and assistant executive director, brought the purchase records with him to Wednesday's hearing. He testified that he knew of no changes made on the records since Thursday's meeting.

POINTED OUT

Sen. Cook and Sen. Fred Bentley of Marietta pointed out what they said were several specific examples of additions that had been made on the records.

The "additions" they mentioned were notations of prices purportedly quoted by vendors contacted by the authority and explanations in some cases of why there were no price quotations.

Cook declared that Miss Schafer went through the records during a recess in last Thursday's meeting and was unable to find any instances where she had made a record of price quotations on purchases under $500.

Miss Schafer has testified that she gets price quotations on all items costing between $50 and $500 except in cases of emergency purchases. All purchases exceeding $500 are advertised for sealed bids, she testified.

ALSO TESTIFIED

Miss Schafer also has testified that her personal car was painted by an authority employe at the state docks during dock operations.

Cook asked Frankenfield if—in view of testimony about bids and the car painting—he thought Miss Schafer should continue as the authority's purchasing director.

Frankenfield said he didn't think the committee had brought out enough proof of anything to justify firing her.

Wednesday's hearing erupted into an intra-committee wrangle at one point when Sen. James Paris of Winder, the third member, challenged questions by Cook and Bentley as being irrelevant to the ports inquiry.

The questions, put to Authority Chairman Frankenfield, concerned whether Frankenfield had ever sought to erect school bus shelters on state highway rights of way.

BENTLEY ASKED

Bentley asked Frankenfield if there was anything to a report that he (Frankenfield) and R. A. (Cheney) Griffin, the govenor's brother and aide, had built the shelters with plans to sell space on them for advertising.

Frankenfield said he didn't see how that involved the port operations, but he went on to say that he personally had approached some state officials about such a venture. He said he had never discussed it with Cheney Griffin.

The authority chairman said he discussed the school bus shelter proposal about two years ago with Roger Lawson, then State Highway Board chairman, and John Quillian, board member.

He said Lawson thought it was an "excellent idea" and stated he would approve construction of the shelters on highway rights of way. He said Quillian concurred.

Frankenfield said Lawson told him that each location of a shelter on highway rights of way would have to be approved individually.

Asked why he didn't go through with the plans, Frankenfield said, "I just didn't get around to it."

Clark Tells Of Threats to High Court

Supreme Court Associate Justice Tom Clark Wednesday night told reporters he has never feared for his life since the high court's historic 1954 decision outlawing racial segregation.

Clark said he received an average of 25 letters daily during a week's stay at Palm Beach, Fla., before coming to Atlanta, where he will address the American Bar Assn. Saturday.

"WHAT DO YOU THINK?"

Asked if the letters were threatening, Clark laughed:

"What do you think?"

Then the former Attorney General commented:

"No, I'm not particularly afraid of anybody. My grandfather was killed up in Allatona, Ga., fighting with a Mississippi regiment during the Civil War."

Clark proudly pointed out that his grandfather was a Confederate colonel and Clark's Hill near Augusta is his namesake.

Justice Clark was asked if he was still warmly received in Texas, his home state.

DECEMBER VISIT

"I spent the last week in December in Texas," he said. "I still have two grandchildren, a son, brother and my wife's mother there. It's amazing, that three years ago I used to get threatening calls and ugly letters there, but not as many any more."

He refused to comment on whether he thought the Supreme Court had lost prestige since the segregation decision.

One newsman asked:

"Mr. Justice, you certainly must know of the high sentiment in the South, particularly here in Georgia, against the court since the segregation decision. Do you have comment on this?"

Clark replied candidly: "I am aware of this but have no comment.

"You can't draw me out," he laughed. "A lot of reporters have tried it."

Emory Awarded $26,000 for Fellowships

A $26,000 grant has been awarded to Emory University's Department of Sociology and Anthropology to support the department's new pre-doctoral fellowship program for two years.

The award, made by a private foundation, makes it possible for the department to offer three fellowships annually, paying $4,000 each to "highly qualified students working toward the Ph.D. degree."

These $4,000 fellowships, which will take effect when the program begins next fall, are believed to be "The most generous fellowships currently offered at the pre-doctoral level in any university," according to Dr. James W. Wiggins, chairman of the department.

2 Youngsters Saved from Frozen Lake

Two young Atlanta skaters were rescued from frozen Moore's Lake Wednesday by a passing motorist after they plunged through the ice.

P. H. Thompson, 2245 Bernadette Lane, NE, said he was driving by the lake, at Roswell road and Lakemoore drive, when he saw the two skaters trying to climb from the hole. One of the youths was Ann Thompson, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Thompson, 2342 Adina Dr., NE. The other, boy about 8, scampered off as soon as he was out.

Thompson, not related to the girl, said there were "about 50 or 75" other skaters "just standing there and watching."

"I jumped in and broke the ice for about 40 feet until I reached them," he said. "She was in water up to her shoulders." Thompson said the girl told him she fell in and the little boy, whom she did not know, came to her rescue.

Draw Fine Line Around the Lips

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER

It takes the right tool to do a job right so it should come as no surprise to see the cosmetic industry bring out a new tool for applying lipstick.

For years women worked with a tube, with the stick of color about the size of a lady's finger. Getting a true outline for the mouth was about as easy as trying to pin-point a crayon on a dot.

Consequently the drawn mouth was usually somewhat off its mark—not to the degree that it was offensive but just enough so as to miss perfection.

THEN THE BRUSH

Then along came the lipstick brush. This was supposed to help all women become artists—to draw mouths that were perfectly the shape they wanted them to be.

Unfortunately it usually took the talent of an artist to use the lipstick brush with maximum effectiveness. And, while many changed over to the brush method, many found it unwieldy in their unskilled hands.

As a result, the brush has made no sweeping change in applying lipstick — those who could used it and those who couldn't stuck with the tube.

LIP LINES

Now this new tool, called a lip liner, should be somewhat of a revolution. Being introduced to Atlanta through a local specialty store by Miss Velma Frnka, it can be used by anyone who can draw a curved line with a pencil.

Fashioned like an automatic pencil, it has lipstick sharpened to a point only a mite larger than a pencil point and the line that can be drawn with it can be as true as a line drawn by a protractor.

The point can be kept sharp as a needle with a brow pencil sharpener. It comes equipped with pink or red lipstick and is refillable.

OUTLINES THE MOUTH

It outlines the shape of the mouth with sureness and keeps the lipstick from feathering into tiny wrinkles around the mouth. As the hours pass, your lipstick should stay where you put it—on the mouth, not running into these little crevices and losing its shape.

According to Miss Frnka, you should draw your mouth with the lower lip extended beyond the upper to give an upturn at corners. This gives the face a happy look—you always seem to be wearing a smile.

"With this new lip liner you can put on lipsticks of two colors—one on top of the other—much smoother and easier for the blended look that will be so popular this spring," said Miss Frnka.

"MUST BLEND"

"Since lipstick is the only artificial coloring on the face, it must blend with the color you are wearing. This spring there will be a preponderance of greens and blues and greens combined. Choose lipsticks in the pinks and oranges for the most flattery," advised Miss Frnka.

While Miss Frnka is here, she will also help you with getting your skin into condition for spring. Having studied for a career in pharmacy, she is well versed in what effect cosmetics have on the skin.

IN FIELD 33 YEARS

She has been in the cosmetic field for 33 years, nine of which she has spent traveling the 48 states with her present line of beauty aids.

She whispered news of a unique blend of rouge she also plans to introduce here. It's a new rouge that changes on every skin to a tone that gives that skin whatever tone would be blush for that particular skin. Because the rouge changes in this manner, any color lipstick may be worn with it.

For shopping information, call JA. 2-5050, Ext. 394, or send a self - addressed post card to Lip Liner, Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

Dad Won't Let Son Drive Car

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

My problem may seem small to some people but, to me, it is a big one. It is about the family car. I have passed Driver's Education very successfully in school. I have a safe driving certificate given to me by the school and signed by the principal and teacher.

I am 17 and a junior in high school. I have a driver's license and I am willing to pay for the gas. However, my Dad just won't let me drive our car, even to church meetings or school clubs. All of my friends, and I do mean all of them, drive cars and that leaves me alone when I want to go on a date. Mrs. Ricker, please advise me what to do.

I can understand how you feel about this problem because I can remember how anxious my son was to start driving on his own. Just as soon as he learned to drive and was old enough for a driver's license he used the family car. So naturally, I agree with you that your father is being unfair.

The basic question is: "Do parents have an 'obligation' to give their children every advantage within their means?"—which, in your case, would include the use of the family automobile.

In my opinion, parents do have that obligation and use of the family car should not be forbidden to a mature teenager, assuming, of course, that the youngster is capable, level-headed and dependable.

In these times, the use of an automobile can be an important factor in a teen-ager's life. It can make a great difference in the scope of his activities and the friends he makes. Since these things contribute much to his social know-how and the development of his personality, I believe use of the family car, with reasonable limitations, of course, is desirable and important.

To some degree, then, parents do have an "obligation" to make the family car available at times and I hope you can persuade your father to "see the light."

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only—as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Canned and Dried Foods Play Important Role After Freeze

By VIRGINIA DYSARD
Constitution Food Editor

Pickings are slim, but there is still plenty for everyone. As long as grocers keep us so well supplied with the great variety of canned and dried foods there will be an ample amount of food on the table.

Dried prunes, for instance, have been added to the list of plentiful foods. They are highly versatile and easy to prepare.

Pinto beans also offer the menu planner a high protein fill-in. They are excellent budget extenders and can be made up into flavorful dishes.

Besides the cold weather which has prevented harvesting of a great many fresh items, the snow has also hindered shipment of some of the commodities from the Midwest which are ready to be put on the retail market. As a result, of course, most fresh vegetables are light in supply and high in price.

TOSSED SALAD WEATHER

It must be tossed salad whether sinse escarole, lettuce and carrots are in greater supply than usual and more abundant than most vegetables. Tomatoes are still on the market because most of them are coming from Cuba. Potatoes, onions, and cauliflower are other good food buys this week.

The effect of the last two Florida freezes on the citrus products is not yet determined. Oranges and grapefruit are still in the markets, but not in as large quantities as in past years. The price of oranges and grapefruit is a little higher than normal, but not nearly so out-of-range as you might expect.

Lemons are plentiful, but apples are the most abundant fruit. Now is the time to boil, broil and bake apples. Rhubarb is a change at a pleasing price.

There is little change in the meat picture this week, but pork loins are somewhat cheaper. Roasts and hams are good pork values this week, while rib steak and chuck roast are the better beef choices. Some markets will feature steaks this weekend.

BETTER EGGS

Poultry continues to be a good buy, with plentiful supplies at reasonable prices. Large grade A eggs are a better buy on a price-per-pound basis than any other size egg.

Since fish is a main topic of food conversation during Lent it is well to know some important facts about storing and cooking it. If fresh fish is not going to be used immediately, wrap it in moisture-proof paper, or place it in a tightly covered place in the refrigerator. Be sure the fish is cleaned before storing.

When frozen fish is wrapped in parchment paper or cellophane, it should be enclosed in another moisture-proof wrapping before placing it in the refrigerator. Packaged frozen fish should remain in the package until time to use.

Frozen fish, fillets and steaks may be cooked while still frozen, but they will take longer to cook. Fish can be thawed at refrigerator temperature. Thaw just long enough to make preparation easy. A one-pound fillet will thaw in the refrigerator in about 18 hours.

Whole or drawn fish can be thawed under cold running water. Packaged fillets and steaks may be thawed in water too, but do not remove from package while thawing. Never refreeze thawed fish, as it spoils very rapidly.

FAT FISH

As a rule, fat fish, such as salmon, white fish, and lake trout, are most desirable for baking and broiling, because their fat will keep them from becoming dry.

Lean fish, such as cod, halibut, perch, haddock and pike, are preferred by some for poaching and steaming. An excellent way of preparing lean fish is to wrap it in aluminum foil and bake it for 30 minutes at 350 degrees. It leaves no fish odor and the moisture is sealed in, so basting is not necessary. Lean fish can be baked open if basted frequently. Both lean and fat fish are well suited for frying.

6 Atlanta Skaters Put the South on Ice

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

And the six home-grown performers learned to skate in their own back yard, too . . . at Atlanta's first ice rink which opened in 1955.

When Holiday on Ice came to town last year, five of the Atlantans (Freddie Curry already belonged to the company) auditioned for and landed jobs in the chorus. Now, after going to Sioux City, Iowa, last summer to learn their professional parts, the skaters have come home as seasoned performers.

Besides Miss Curry, Pat Wilson, Jane Morris and Patsy Coy skate in the girls' chorus. Hart Breaux and George Williams are members of the boys' chorus. Three of the girls went to Roosevelt High together.

Most members of the company have skimmed along the ice — in and out-of-doors — all their lives. But their head start didn't bother these Atlantans.

Take the case of Patsy Coy, whose father, T. B. Coy, works for the show every year when it comes to town. Naturally, father took daughter to the show each year. Eighteen-year-old Patsy first watched the graceful, colorful skaters when she was five years old.

From that time on her fascination grew until she got a chance to try her own skates at the local rink. Patsy had taken tap dancing lessons, and used to appear with a dance group on local television programs.

Skating was just a step from dancing for this tiny, pretty performer.

At first, explained Patsy, her parents weren't too pleased with her skating dream. "They thought what most parents think about a daughter in show business," commented pony-tailed Patsy, and cringed. "They wanted me to be a secretary."

"But," she added with a flashing smile, "they've seen me in the show now and they're glad I joined."

Patsy has joined the show and seen the country, too. She's toured west to Salt Lake City, through the Middle West and New England states, and soon the show will go to Mexico City.

Members of the company get two weeks vacation at Christmas and six weeks between shows in the summer. Patsy plans to come home for summer vacation, just like she did for Christmas.

And what did she do in Atlanta in December? "Why," laughed Patsy joyfully, "I skated every day."

Numerous Parties For ABA Visitors

With every plane and train bringing bigwigs of the legal profession into town for the southern regional meeting of the American Bar Assn., the social calendar receives a decided impetus. Inspired principally, of course, by the feminine element, for many of the lawyers are bringing their wives.

In addition to the luncheon and fashion revue to be held today at the Driving Club for the feminine visitors, another luncheon-style show on Monday at the Cherokee Club, and several home and sightseeing tours, numerous private parties have been scheduled.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Spann Jr. are entertaining at dinner tomorrow evening at Dale's Restaurant for a group of friends from Georgia and the Southeast. Among their guests will be James L. Shepherd of Houston, chairman of the House of Delegates, and Mrs. Shepherd, William J. Jameson of Billings, Mont., past president of ABA, and Mrs. Jameson.

On Monday evening the Philip Alstons Jr. will team with the Spanns to be hosts for dinner to a group of prominent members of the House of Delegates. The party will be held at the Alston home on W. Paces Ferry road.

Those former Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Asbil of Washington, who are here for the meeting, will be honor guests when Dr. and Mrs. Elbert Tuttle Jr. entertain at cocktails on Saturday at the Driving Club.

Monday afternoon a cocktail party will be held at the Cherokee Club for the visitors, with the calling hours from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Jones will entertain a group of out-of-town guests in the House of Delegates at dinner at their home on Tuxedo road. On the same evening Mr. and Mrs. W. Neal Baird will be hosts at a dinner party at their W. Wesley road home, and the Randolph Throwers will also entertain a group of out-of-towners at dinner at their Woodward Way home.

MRS. RHODES PERDUE will seek a warmer clime on Monday when she leaves for Miami to spend 10 days with her mother-in-law, Mrs. L. O. Bricker, at the Flamingo.

LETITIA DE GOLIAN, daughter of the Richard de Golians who is known as Candy to her friends, is just back from New Orleans with wondrous tales of the Mardi Gras festivities she attended. The trip was a gift for her 13th birthday.

Candy visited Paula MacPherson, daughter of her mother's life-long friend, Mrs. J. Ritchie MacPherson, who is herself a former queen of Mardi Gras. The MacPhersons live in one of the famous old houses of New Orleans, the Madame LeVert home, and it is a tradition with them to keep open house on Mardi Gras Day which was Tuesday.

Candy is a seventh grader at Christ the King School. Her friends will recall Paula's visit to her here last summer.

WHEN THE CANADIAN NATIONAL BALLET arrives this weekend to appear at the Tower Theater, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Starke will come from New Orleans to attend the performance. Mr. Starke is Canadian consul general in New Orleans. He and Mrs. Starke will be guests at the Biltmore.

BRIDE-ELECT SALLY FORTSON will be honor guest when Mrs. Albert W. Fortinberry entertains at tea on Saturday at Franklin Simon's. Mrs. Fortinberry will be one of Miss Fortson's bridesmaids at her marriage to John Arnold Weerz on March 20 at the Druid Hills Baptist Church.

DR. AND MRS. FRANK L. BELYEU are just back from Florence, S.C., where they had the first glimpse of their new granddaughter, born Feb. 3 to Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Belyeu Jr. The baby has been named Jean Singleton. The Belyeus lived in Atlanta until moving to Florence recently.

THE REV. SAM H. FRANKLIN JR. and Dr. Chester Fort will fly to Atlanta from Jacksonville tomorrow to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Franklin Sr. on Austin avenue. Mr. Franklin Jr. will be guest minister at the services at the Baptist Tabernacle on Sunday.

OTHER VISITORS EXPECTED tomorrow are Rabbi and Mrs. Joe S. Geffen and their daughter, Rela, of Great Neck, Long Island. They will be guests of Mr. Geffen's parents, Rabbi and Mrs. Tobias Geffen or Zimmer drive. Rabbi Joe Geffen is national field director of the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York.

TO SAIL ATLANTIC

Producer Converts Cottage Into Boat

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—A former theater producer plans to cross the Atlantic Ocean in his summer cottage.

The "cottage" which belongs to Max Sonino, is a new amphibious trailer, called the "Skipper 26." By land, it's a regular trailer, which hitches to a car. By sea, it's a flat-bottomed houseboat.

This summer, Sonino, who is married to former actress Ruth Gillmore, plans to take the trailer-boat from Bar Harbor, Maine, to Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, and Europe. Two other men will go with him. They will display the craft at the Brussels World's Fair.

HE'S THE FIRST

"We'll be informal ambassadors, showing the world part of American life," said the Italian-born Sonino, the first person to own the trailer-boat.

He has sailed for most of his 50 years, owned yachts and directed government expeditions, but crossing the Atlantic will be a new adventure.

"Worried? Not at all. It's crazy to take chances, but I'm not taking any. The Skipper is like a barge — splashes and splashes but doesn't roll or capsize," he said.

The deck, on top of the craft, is large enough for "tables, chairs, and six persons." The boat also has a large afterdeck, picture window in the bow, two couches which open into two double-decker bunks, a sink, refrigerator, bathroom and insulation.

IT'S UNSINKABLE

The interior is mahogany plywood; the cabin, aluminum, and the hull, steel.

Sonino has sailed the craft about 3,000 miles on inland waters in Connecticut, on Long Island Sound, and in the Atlantic along the New Jersey coast. He also plans to take the Skipper on a 5,000-mile landlubbing cruise from Fort Worth, Texas, to Florida this spring before going to Europe.

"It's so safe that even my wife likes it and isn't afraid," said Sonino. "It's unsinkable. I know, because I found out fast.

"I had invited seven persons aboard for her first voyage. I was so excited I forgot to close the sea cocks. Water poured in, the hull filled, and I was scared stiff. But nothing happened. We just took her back, let out the water and started again."

Dollars And Faith

"Aren't people hateful about money?" my friend asked and I nodded numbly. I was bruised and battered by two anonymous telephone callers who wanted to quarrel with the selection of the young Davises of Jonesboro as recipients of that "End of the Rainbow" good fortune.

There were but two such calls out of a dozen. The others were people who were genuinely delighted for the Davises but even so, two anonymous callers are enough to sour an otherwise pleasant day. Under cloak of anonymity people will say hurtful things they wouldn't say if their identity was known and I should be conditioned to it by now but I'm not.

"It's that money," my friend said to comfort me. "It always brings out the worst in people."

I agreed and I thought I meant it. Now I know we were both dead wrong.

Two days ago I wrote about the Goodwill Industries and its drive to raise money for a new building so that disabled and elderly people may continue the work which makes them independent and self-supporting.

The paper was hardly out before that other, wonderful attitude about money evidenced itself.

A widow I know who supports a family of four by taking in sewing wrote: "I hate to bother you to pass this on to the Goodwill people but you gave no address in your column this morning. Sorry not to be able to send more than the widow's mite—but this was given to me."

A dollar was clipped to her letter.

I opened another letter from a Lakewood avenue address and another dollar fell out.

"This morning you wrote about Goodwill Industries and their needs. As you say $175,000 sounds tremendous. But I believe with you that if everyone who has a job would give a dollar or more, as they are willing to give, it wouldn't take long to realize that $175,000. And it would help so many people who are old. I have seen so many elderly people not having anything to do and seemingly no one to care for them, that I would love to send the enclosed $1 knowing you will see it gets to the right people, as I don't know who to send it to.

"I know that when a few have faith in God great things can and will happen. Not more than a little over three years ago we sold our old church building and because we had to sell as most of our membership was not around the church and other reasons, we lost a good many of our members. When we found the place for our new church and got the blue print of the building and the cost we found we needed something like $175,000 to build. We also found we had about 130 church members we could depend on and to us $175,000 sounded like all the money in the world. But having faith in God and a wonderful and beloved pastor who for 33 years had guided his people, we bought the land and if you were to drive by 1019-49 Custer Ave., SE, you would see a beautiful building standing on a hill to the glory of God and now something over 800 church members. . . . Though not paid for we are looking forward to the day it will be paid for. The building is there because a few had faith in God and a mind to work."

She ended with a little apology for her long letter. "I would like to have been able to send more but my job does not pay very much and my health has not been very good the past few months. But I just wanted to be a little part of what you ask."

There were others who want to be a part of it and for them, here's the address: "Goodwill Industries, 388 Edgewood Ave., NE."

The priceless privilege of being able to work was what struck me about the Goodwill Industries' enterprise. Another correspondent had a lovely quote on the subject by Rollo Walter Brown which she enclosed.

"To be able to rise up morning after morning with no cricks in one's body, or —so far as one can tell—in one's mind, and work in quickened awareness at something that one wishes to do, and that seems to be worth doing—where has anybody ever found a deeper satisfaction than that?"

Ike Works 4 Hours, Takes a Short Drive

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Correspondent

THOMASVILLE, Feb. 19—President Eisenhower spent about four hours at his desk Wednesday and then took a drive around Milestone Plantation, where he hopes to get in some quail hunting Thursday.

Despite a break in the cold weather that sent the temperature up to 45 in midafternoon, the President and his doctor evidently felt it was still too chilly to go hunting.

HUNT LIKELY THURSDAY

The dogs and the hunting wagons were ready at the plantation of George M. Humphrey.

The chances for a hunt Thursday look better since the forecast is for a high of 52 after a low of 27 tonight.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower still has a slight cold and huskiness of throat, but that it is improving every day. The President, he added, feels fine.

Last night the President completed his message to Congress calling for a $3,900,000,000 mutual security program and today sent it to Congress.

WORKS ON SPEECH

Hagerty said Eisenhower also put in a good part of Wednesday morning on a speech he will make back in Washington next Tuesday, urging public support for his foreign aid program.

Since last weekend, Ike has been spending an average of four hours a day working, the secretary added. The rest of the time he has been spending playing bridge and relaxing.

Although he has been kept from hunting or golf for seven straight days, the President has no plans to cut short his stay here and go to Nassau. Hagerty today spiked that rumor from New York and said Eisenhower expects to remain here until sometime Sunday.

Eisenhower planned to spend more time tonight polishing up the final draft of the speech he is to make next Tuesday at a conference on mutual security which will also include former President Truman as a speaker.

A Georgian, Erle Cocke Jr., vice-president of Delta Air Lines, is co-chairman of that meeting along with Eric Johnston.

Ike today signed several minor relief bills passed by Congress and announced he will reappoint two members of the U.S. Advisory Commission on educational exchange. They are Arthur H. Edens, president of Duke University, and Anna L. Rose Hawkes, dean of students at Mills College in California.

Do you find that your desire to lose weight disappears as if by magic when you sit down to eat? Do you have a long argument with yourself before you surrender, do you feel ashamed and rather disgusted with yourself afterward—after the food has disappeared and you start counting the calories and thinking of that layer of fat you were "absolutely determined" to get rid of?

If your answer to these questions is a sorrowful "Yes," try smoking just one TRIM reducing aid cigarette before each meal. After a week you'll find you've acquired a magnificent indifference to food in excess quantities.

TRIM reducing aid cigarettes will not interfere with your regular smoking habits. They are not intended to replace your favorite smoke. Smoke a TRIM reducing aid cigarette and you'll be amazed to find yourself shaking your head as the food is passed around. There'll be no argument, you won't have to close your eyes and grit your teeth, you just won't want!

God Leads His Own in Many Ways

QUESTION: I have read somewhere in the Bible that the Lord leads Christians. I don't seem to be able to understand just how the Lord can lead us. I believe I am a Christian but must confess that my life is just terribly confused.

—P. M.

ANSWER: A great storm on the ocean causes waves but they are only on the surface. Beneath there is a calm. Sometimes the Christian life is like that. The circumstances of life cause an outward confusion. The person, however, who has completely committed his life to Christ has an inward serenity and peace. Your misunderstanding is one that is common to many people. What you are expecting is that all the problems of life are going to disappear. Actually, the Bible teaches that God will be with you in your troubles but He will not remove them from you.

God leads His children in various ways:

1. Through the Scriptures—that is why it is so important to know the Bible. We are often confused because we are ignorant of God's ways and instructions.
2. Through prayer.
3. By the still small voice of the Holy Spirit.
4. By circumstances that God brings to pass in our lives.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 spade	2 hearts
Pass	3 hearts	3 spades	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of spades.

There are numerous types of safety plays which are not readily found in the book, but must be improvised by declarer as the play develops. Observe today's hand where South threw away a vulnerable game by failing to approach his problem with sufficient caution.

The bidding was reasonable. North had top-drawer values with which to raise his partner's vulnerable overcall and South carried on to game in the face of East's single-handed competition.

West opened the nine of spades. Declarer in order to lead trumps quickly from dummy towards his honors in hearts, won with the ace and led a trump. East was in with the ace. The return of the queen of spades put declarer's king to the slaughter, and since a diamond and a spade had still to be lost declarer submitted to a one-trick set.

South might have handled the dummy with somewhat greater caution. East's vulnerable rebid at the level of three almost surely marks him with possession of a six-card suit.

That a spade ruff was therefore imminent should have been apparent to South but he must take pains to provide that West, if he does get in a trump, should place it on a little spade rather than one of the top ones.

If South wins the first spade trick with the king he will attain safety. He may cross to dummy with a club and lead a heart. When East is in with the ace and returns a spade, West may get in a ruff, but he will be ruffing a low spade which declarer would have to give up in any event and the ace would remain secure.

Actress Shows Power Of Positive Thinking

LONDON, Feb. 19 (UP) — A strap broke during a television play last night. The action suited the dialogue, but it was not part of the script.

"I could paint you," the artist in the play said to the pretty girl.

She shrugged her shoulder and down came the evening gown. However, she recovered the dress without missing a line.

A Lot of Bologna: Bandit Gets $90, Too

A small bandit with a taste for bologna Wednesday robbed a curb market at 2275 Cheshire Bridge Rd., NE, of $90, police said.

Sgt. G. H. Christian and Detective N. W. Flanagan said the robber, a Negro, is wanted in a series of similar holdups during the last two weeks. Invariably, they said, he selects a package of bologna before leaving the store.

J. O. Howell, clerk in the Cheshire Bridge road market, said the man entered, asked the price of milk and then turned to the meat counter and picked up the bologna. Howell said he then whipped out a revolver, took the money and strolled out.

Rail Underpass Hearing Set

A public hearing on East Point's No. 1 underpass project, the Spring avenue extension, has been set for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the council chamber.

Mayor Johnny Stith said the city was interested in hearing the public's views on the $1,300,000 project before final plans for the project are completed. A contract is expected to be let some time next fall.

The project, one of three approved in a countywide three-million-dollar bond issue, will consist of a east-west connector joining Headland avenue near Lumpkin on the west side and East Cleveland avenue near Humphries street on the east. It will consist of 1.3 miles of four-lane pavement, tunneling under the railroad and highway near Forest avenue. The route runs primarily through city property and back yards of lots.

The other two bond-approved projects are a Lakewood avenue extension, with 3.3 miles of new paving connecting Campbellton road, and an underpass in College Park, whose site has not been determined.

A Stylish Hurler

Haberdashers in Boston and Chicago were delighted Wednesday over news that Dick Donovan, the stylish right-hander, has received a 70 per cent pay boost from the Chicago White Sox.

When he worked for Earl Mann for considerably less than the $30,000 he'll receive next season, Donovan was one of the best-dressed men in baseball. When the Crackers were on the road, Mr. Donovan led the league in window shopping. Now that he has moved into the higher income bracket, Donovan will undoubtedly move into the fashion league with citizens like the Duke of Windsor and Pal Joey.

Outlar

The communique issued by Chuck Comiskey, the Chisox veep, did not say whether Donovan also sold him a policy. Blessed with a gift for gab, Donovan has been doing better than somewhat on the insurance circuit around Quincy, Mass.

He had no trouble selling Comiskey on the fact that the Chisox have a good investment in Donovan. In fact, Comiskey, who is not noted for being a fancy spender, gave Donovan the biggest salary boost ever granted a Chisox employe.

There are impressive statistics listed on Donovan's past performance chart for '57. From the Chicago viewpoint, however, the fact that Donovan registered a 3-1 record against the Yankees was perhaps the chief selling point. It certainly makes Dick a man of distinction, for beating the Yankees is definitely a rarity on the Sox staff. Mere sight of Yankee Stadium is ordinarily enough to frighten Comiskey's hirelings out of the A. L. race.

You might say that Donovan was a regular-season Lew Burdette against the former world champs. Al Lopez invited Donovan to make five starts against the Yanks, and he bagged three triumphs. The Yankees didn't exactly rough Dick up in the two games he failed to win. They squeezed out a 2-1 verdict in 11 innings when the anemic Chisox failed to offer any aid. And he was leading 4-2, when Jim Wilson strolled in and served a grand-slam gopher to Moose Skowron one Saturday afternoon.

—Casey Thinks He'd Make a Great Yankee

It's easy to understand why Casey Stengel has often said that Donovan is one of the finest pitchers in the majors. In fact, Casey thinks it would be great for Dick to be a Yankee, but Mr. Comiskey refuses to discuss the matter at length with George Weiss.

Donovan recommended himself for a raise by chalking a 16-6 record last summer. He had an ERA of 2.77, despite a shaky April start. Billy Pierce, the Chisox southpaw ace, was the only other A. L. pitcher to complete as many games. Donovan finished what he started in 16 of 28 assignments, which is somewhat remarkable these days.

The fun-loving Donovan probably has to look at the labels of his expensive coats to convince himself that he's really such a successful major leaguer.

There was a time, 1953 to be precise, when Donovan expected to be selling insurance 12, instead of four months each year. He had flunked four or five tests with the Boston variety of Braves, and he had never been any bargain in the minors. In fact, he was more widely known for his fiery temper than his pitching ability.

After compiling a 4-6 record with Milwaukee, then in the American Association, Donovan announced his retirement at the end of the 1952 campaign.

Little things often mean a lot in sports. For instance, the choice of a manager for the Crackers in 1953 was a turning point in the Donovan career.

Ordinarily, it's not too difficult to lure newly retired pitchers out of retirement. But if Gene Mauch, Donovan's onetime Milwaukee roommate, hadn't been handling the Cracker reins, Dick might not be pitching today.

—Mauch Lured Donovan Out of Retirement

Mauch ran up a phone bill before he persuaded Donovan that he should take one last fling in Atlanta before reaching a decision on his future.

Donovan eventually consented, provided Earl Mann would peddle him outside of the Brave organization if he had a good year. In Atlanta, of course, Donovan met Whit Wyatt, and it's rumored that the shrewd pitching coach taught Dick how to throw a slider.

At any rate, Donovan had a fair 11-8 season under Mauch, and Mann kept his promise. He sold Donovan to Detroit. The Detroit brass still blushes over the deal.

Fred Hutchinson, now the St. Louis manager, who was passing judgment on Tiger pitchers that year, decided that the Braves were right about Donovan. He wasn't, in Hutchinson's opinion, a major league pitcher, so Donovan was refunded to Atlanta.

Wyatt had instilled confidence in Donovan. Only a year ago Dick had agreed he wasn't a major league pitcher. But he returned to Atlanta in 1954 determined to prove that the Braves and Tigers were wrong.

Wyatt moulded Donovan into a top-drawer pitcher, and Dick showed his appreciation by pitching the Crackers to a pennant. He still wasn't regarded as a bargain, despite an 18-8 regular-season chart and two Dixie Series triumphs.

Mann convinced the White Sox that Donovan was a good investment, but Earl never dreamed how good. Neither did the White Sox who also purchased Leo Cristante that year.

Donovan broke in with a 15-9 bang, dipped to 12-10 the following year and hit his peak last season. And, of course, he hit Comiskey for 30 G's Wednesday.

He probably celebrated the new contract by buying a new suit. He may be the most stylish right-hander in the A. L., on and off the diamond.

IN HOOP JR'S. FOOTSTEPS

TECH SOPH'S HORSE WINS $16,075

By AL THOMY

Fred W. Hooper Jr. of Georgia Tech is probably the country's only college sophomore with a winning race horse.

His Pryson made it two straight when he scampered home a length and a quarter ahead of 18 other two-year-olds to win the $21,650 Florida Breeders' Stakes at Miami's Hialeah Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Hooper Sr. were in the winner's circle to collect the winner's net of $16,075, but student Hooper learned about the victory 20 minutes later Wednesday.

"My father called me from the track," explained the 19-year-old Tech industrial management major. "I was pleased to hear of it. My friends were really pulling for Pryson."

Whence cometh the name Pryson?

"Oh, from the sire and dam, Heavenly Sun and Pry," explained young Hooper. "His stablemate, Prybu, who finished fourth, was named after Pry Mist and Quibu."

Pryson was foaled on a farm at Quincy, Fla., near the Georgia line. Hooper Sr. has a breeding farm at Montgomery, and Heavenly Sun was bred there. Pryson won his first start last Thursday by half a length over Indian Maid.

Two-for-two . . . not a bad batting average. Does Hooper see the Kentucky Derby in Pryson's future?

"I sure hope so, but you can't tell yet. We need to see Pryson and Prybu in action a little more. Sure hope so, though."

When Fred was six years old, his father's entry, Hoop Jr., won the 1945 Derby. The victory returned a handsome $64,850 payoff.

Pryson, a chestnut gelding, ran the three furlong straightaway course in :33 1/5, fastest time of the current Hialeah meeting and only four-fifths of a second off the track record. Steve Brooks was in the saddle.

He paid $3.90, $2.60 and $2.30, and finished ahead of Marisa, Coltrane and Prybu.

Does Hooper ever exercise his speedy charge?

"Well, not hardly. You see, I weigh 220," chuckled Fred.

Plainsmen Strain For Best Campaign

Vols, Wildcats and Bama Bar Door to Auburn Record

By MICKEY LOGUE

Despite a king-sized casualty list and a rocky start, this could be Auburn's best Southeastern Conference basketball season.

Coach Joel Eaves' Plainsmen need one victory in their three remaining games to duplicate the 9-5 SEC chart of 1942. Every Auburn team since has lost more than five conference games.

If they should win two of three—and it's even money they won't—it would mean the Plainsmen's top percentage effort since the league was formed in 1933.

Auburn stands 8-3 and in a three-way tie for second behind Kentucky, with its three toughest tests of the season coming up.

Eaves' men meet Tennessee (8-3) at Auburn Saturday and tangle with the league-leading Kentucky Wildcats (10-1) at Birmingham Monday. They lower the 1958 curtain against arch-rival Alabama (8-3) at Montgomery.

"I expect we're outmanned in every one of those games," Eaves said via telephone. Then a pause, a sigh and, "but we've been outmanned before. We'll just have to play 'em one at a time."

Auburn lost star guard Henry Hart to a pre-season injury, and No. 3 guard Bayward McManus suffered a broken collarbone in January. Sophomore forward Shot Johnston, who started several games, has been harassed by injury all year.

He returned to the lineup with 17 points against LSU Saturday, and then promptly sprained his ankle. He will be handicapped against Tennessee.

Bobby Tucker, originally slated for reserve guard duty, has averaged 14.8 points in those games. He has raised his season's rate from 7.6 to 10.6.

Captain Rex Frederick, who leads the scorers with a 16.8 average, needs 33 rebounds in three games to crack his team record of 322. He is grabbing 15.3 an outing, equalling last year's record rate.

Jimmy Lee's 13.8 firing is second among the scorers.

However, the work of Johnston, Terry Chandler, Bill McGriff and others has been vital to the streak.

Jones Beats Kid Gavilan

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19. (AP)—Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Brooklyn scored a split decision over Kid Gavilan of Cuba in a 10-round slugfest tonight that had the crowd roaring at the finish.

Gavilan, at 32 the veteran of 140 fights, including 27 knockouts, used sharp lefts to the head and face but Jones forced the fight with a mixture of hard lefts and an occasional right.

Donovan Pay Boost Sets Chisox Record

Ex-Atlantan Receives $30,000; Campy's Condition Same

From Press Dispatches

Ex-Atlanta pitcher Dick Donovan, the Chicago "Yankee Killer," Wednesday agreed to 1958 terms which gave him the largest salary increase ever accorded a White Sox player.

The erstwhile holdout reportedly induced vice president Chuck Comiskey to give him a 70 per cent increase over last year for a salary close to $30,000 this season.

Dick Donovan

Right - hander Donovan, 30, had a 16-6 record last season and his .727 percentage tied New York's Tom Sturdivant for the American League lead.

Donovan, who came to term via telephone from his Quincy, Mass., home, tied with teammate Billy Peace for the league lead in completed games at 16. He led the league in complete game percentage, .571, with his 16 in 28 starts. In five starts against the pennant-winning Yankees, Donovan had a 3-1 record.

In a total of 45 innings against New York, Donovan had a 2.40 ERA. His low of 45 walks was surpassed only by New York's Bobby Shantz, who gave 40. But Donovan hurled 221 innings compared to only 173 for Shantz.

Donovan was the only pitcher, besides the winner Warren Spahn, of Milwaukee, to poll any votes for the Cy Young award for the majors' outstanding pitcher last season.

Baseball in Brief

MORE BASEBALL—Dodger catcher Roy Campanella remains paralyzed from the hips down, and the hospital says the longer the condition continues the less one can expect for the future. . . . Harvey Kuenn, slated to be shifted from shortstop to the outfield, signed his 1958 Detroit Tiger contract. A Tiger spokesman said he took an undisclosed salary cut. He drew $30,000 last season. . . . Jackie Davis, a $40,000 bonus outfield prospect with the Philadelphia Phillies, severely sprained his ankle in a rundown between home plate and third base. . . . Cincinnati's Ed Bailey, one of the best catchers in the National League, signed for '58, as did Redleg pitcher Johnny Klippstein.

Larry MacPhail, who has operated the Redlegs, Dodgers and Yankees, has proposed four six-club major leagues. . . . Yankees still have 10 unsigned players including stars Mickey Mantle, Whitey Ford and Bob Turley.

Spivey Misses Cage Pot, Tries To Cook Goose

GREENVILLE, S.C., Feb. 19 (AP) — Professional basketball player Bill Spivey has filed suit in common pleas court here seeking $6,720 from Harlem Globetrotter star "Goose" Tatum.

Spivey, former Kentucky star, contends in his suit that Tatum, doing business as Harlem Stars basketball team, signed him to a $210-per-day player contract for the period from Oct. 28, 1957, to Feb. 28, 1958.

His complaint charges that, under this contract, he is due $6,720 and has not been paid.

Butts Calls Bulldog Drill Ragged; Centers Shine

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Feb. 19—Disappointed with the "ragged" play his Bulldogs showed Wednesday afternoon, coach Wally Butts nevertheless continues to sing the praises of his center corps.

Out of action since last Friday because of arctic weather conditions the Bulldogs engaged in a game-type scrimmage in Sanford Stadium for the first contact work in five days.

"I guess you've got to expect some rust when you don't get to work, "Butts said after the workout." Our defense looked well ahead of the offense today."

In mitigation of the offense, it must be added that the first, second, and third string right halfbacks are on the injured list. Junior Don Soberdash and senior Gene Littleton have been sidelined for several days, and in Wednesday's workout, Nick Bracco joined the "crips" with a hurt leg.

Butts considers Dave Lloyd, junior from Gladewater, Texas, "the finest specimen I've ever had, and he can be as good as he wants to be."

Giving Lloyd able backing up is another junior, Dude Thompson, and sophomore Phil Ashe. Like Lloyd, both are transfers from other positions. Thompson played end at Gainesville High, in the Navy, and as a Bullpup. Last fall was his first try at the pivot post. Ashe, of course, won All-State honors as a tackle for Stone Mountain High. As a freshman last fall, he was the number one center for Quinton Lumpkin's undefeated Bullpups. Lloyd, before his stint as a center last fall, was a fullback in prep school and at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia.

Berg Aims for No. 8 In Titleholders Play

Patty Heads '58 Entry Roster; Reynolds Hones Game for Event

By BERT PRATHER

It is only fitting that Patty Berg's name should head the early entries for the 19th Women's Titleholders Golf Championship at Augusta Country Club March 13-16.

After all, Patty's the queen of women's golf. And no small part of her great record has been carved out of the exceedingly rugged Augusta Country Club course since the inaugural Titleholders in 1937.

The chunky redhead's achievements in golf have long ago reached the fabulous stage. During her quarter-century of competitive golf, Patty has won more tournaments than any other woman player, pro or amateur.

Mary Ann was low amateur in the LPGA event at St. Petersburg, Fla., Sunday. She is now competing in the South Atlantic Women's Amateur at Ormond Beach, Fla., where she eliiminated Dot Talton, Daytona Beach, 7 and 6 Tuesday. Mary Ann plans to play at St. Augustine in the East Coast championship next and then the Jacksonville Open with the pros before moving on to Augusta.

Fight Group Plans Heavyweight Action

From Press Dispatches

The world championship boxing committee, headed by Julius Helfand of New York, is ready to take definite and certain action on the heavyweight situation soon.

That's the word from Helfand in New York Wednesday as he said both the calender and quality of opposition would be considered in the proposed action.

Reigning king Floyd Patterson hasn't defended his crown since Aug. 22 (against Pete Rademacher) and his six months' period of grace has expired. But Helfand said he wouldn't expect the champ to meet the exact letter of the law.

Helfand no-commented on the type action he proposed, which he said had the backing of boxing officials throughout the world.

Rules call for the champ to defend in six months against one of the three leading contenders. Patterson fights England's Joe Erskine or Sweden's Ingemar Johansson this summer.

NORTHSIDE STATE TITLE THREAT

THEY QUIT TWISTING TIGER'S TAIL

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Boys' basketball prosperity, unlike Herbert Hoover's imagined kind, wasn't even just around the corner at Northside High until Edd O'Quinn took over the coaching reins.

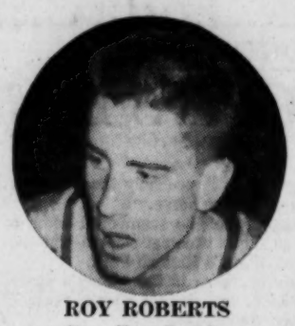
The almost complete lack of success by Tigers who wore short pants in the winter was as conspicuous as a wart on Miss America's neck, because Northside teams in other sports were collecting championship trophies in bunches during those first five years (1951-55) of the school's existence.

But the 1956 basketball coming-out party of O'Quinn, who had established himself solidly at Northside with three years of producing outstanding football lines, was a complete success. And Dame Fortune has smiled on all his productions since.

His Northsiders, never before basketball contenders, won their way into the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored state tournament for the third successive time in recent nights. And Tuesday they led Brown's unbeaten Rebels much of the route before falling in the city tournament finals, 52-44.

The Tigers, led by a remarkable 6-3 redhead named Roy Roberts who is playing his fourth year as a regular, dumped Fulton, 62-30; Roosevelt, 38-29, and O'Keefe, 60-56, along the earlier Region 3-AAA tournament trail.

NORTHSIDE'S FOWLER
Guards Tigers' Lair



ROY ROBERTS
Four-Year Regular

Northside, winners of 61 games while losing 27 in three years under O'Quinn, will probably meet St. Thomas Aquinas or Glynn Academy in the opening round of the state tournament at Alexander Memorial Coliseum next Wednesday.

The Tigers' won-lost charts for 3 years are startlingly identical. They were 22-9 in 1956, 20-9 in 1957 and 19-9 this season. Each year they've climbed a little higher in city tourney play, finishing fourth in 1956, third in 1957 and second this year.

The Northside Drivers have reached the state quarterfinals twice. In last year's big meet under Georgia Tech's Big Dome they downed Baker in overtime, 59-51, and bowed to Benedictine's 2-AAA champs, 41-39.

O'Quinn, a Jesup native who coached seven years at Thomasville, fortunately is not superstitious. He wouldn't be surprised if his able Tigers won their first state title in his 13th coaching season. He's certain the trophy would greatly decorate the case that holds awards for one state and four straight city football crowns, three straight city baseball titles, a state and several city track diadems and two state and three city girls' basketball championships.

The carrot-topped Roberts, picked by O'Quinn along with Bud Callier, Tiny Williamson, Rick Madison and Steve Snipes on his "all-O'Quinn era" team, means as much to his 1958 team as All-America Stan Gann did to the state title football team, he vows.

Roberts scored 395 points in 19 regular-season games for a 20.8 per-game average. In region games he had 273 in 14 outings, a 19.5 average. And he and Mit FitzSimons, 6-4 soph center, set the Northside rebounding pace. Roberts, who played center one year and forward three, is also a clever ball handler.

But O'Quinn is quick to point out that this is no "one-man team." Soph guard Jerry Brooks fired at a 16.9 average with 236 points in 14 league games despite his mere 5-10 and 130 physical credentials. He's already a great shot and with growth should become one of the top performers.

The other forward for the Tigers, who hit 54 per cent of their field shots in four city tourney games, is 6-2 Harold Wells, who has done an unusually fine defensive job.

Mike Petrie, 6-5 senior, has developed by leaps and bounds in late season and blocks many opponent shots. He, too, excels on defense and against O'Keefe hit four field goals in four tries. FitzSimons had 11 rebounds against O'Keefe in one half and is tabbed for future greatness.

Guard Wyche Fowler, 5-11 senior, is in his second varsity year and an excellent clutch performer. An able playmaker, Fowler held O'Keefe's tough Ralph Hunter scoreless for three periods in the city semi-finals. And in the first meeting with Brown, his 15 points almost netted the upset of the year.

Brewton Parker, Young Harris, South Georgia Gain Semi-Finals

By PAUL ATKINSON
Constitution Sports Writer

MACON, Feb. 19—The fellows who seeded teams in the 20th annual State Junior College Tournament knew whereof they spoke.

All four top-rated teams won quarter final battles Wednesday night at Mercer's Porter gymnasium. Top-ranked Abraham Baldwin socked Southern Tech, 69-59; No. 2 Brewton-Parker walloped West Georgia, 101-50; No. 3 Young Harris outlasted Middle Georgia, 74-66, in overtime and South Georgia, No. 4, outdefensed Georgia Southwestern, 72-57.

Semifinals come off Thursday. In the 7:30 p.m. opener, Young Harris and Brewton-Parker meet; in the nightcap, South Georgia and ABAC.

Harry Lockhart's STI appeared on the brink of an upset. The Chamblee team led 38-24 late in the first half, but a second half drive sparked by center Phil Simpson and 5-8 guard Lawain Studdard did in the Tech men's upset hopes.

Simpson hit five straight points late in the second half to overcome a one-point deficit, and Studdard added four in the spree that broke STI's back. Simpson contributed 19 points to ABAC's cause and forward Buck Etheridge 22. Pete Martin had 18 and Max Samples 12 for STI.

Blackburn Hits 38 As Smyrna Rolls

Fairburn Edges Avondale In Region 4-AA Thriller

By BILL FOSTER

Smyrna Campbell's Don Blackburn set a sizzling 38-point pace in a 69-43 victory over Hapeville Wednesday night at Roosevelt gym as the 4-AA cage tournament moved into the quarter-finals.

Aside from Blackburn's scoring show, Campbell of Fairburn caused the biggest stir with a last-half rally that overtook Avondale in a 46-45 thriller.

Other first-round battles saw Gainesville win its 15th game, shelling Douglas County, 58-24, and Headland shot down Newton County, 58-43.

Blackburn's big point spree came largely from Smyrna's fast-breaking attack. The fleet Smyrna guard collected 14 field goals and 10 free throws.

Gainesville hit on 50 per cent of its shots from the field in the second half to swamp Douglas County. The Elephants held a 25-9 halftime margin and were never threatened as forward Jack Bell grabbed 21 rebounds during the three quarters in which he played.

Jimmy Mobley pumped in 23 points for Avondale, but Fairburn overcame a halftime deficit of eight points and rode on to victory. Leon Hurst led Fairburn with 14 points, while Darrell Crawford collected 12.

For Headland Allen Stith led the pointmaking with 20. Jimmy Bryan had 16 for Headland. Ed Hertwig was the lone Newton Countian to count in the double figures, scoring 11.

SW DeKalb and Russell Surge Into Semifinal Round of 4-AAA

Special to The Constitution

ROSSVILLE, Feb. 19 — Seeded Southwest DeKalb and Russell High basketball teams surged into the semi-finals of the Region 4-AAA tournament here Wednesday night, winning berths in the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored state meet enroute.

Russell's 56-44 triumph over Decatur's state defending champs meant that the big meet at Alexander Coliseum in Atlanta will be without a defending champion.

Southwest DeKalb, never before in a state AAA meet, surged from a 28-20 half-time lead over Cedartown to a 68-35 run-away victory.

Marietta's girls thrashed Decatur, 45-15, as Dinah Tumlin looped in 28 points and sister Linda starred in a tight defense that limited Decatur to three field goals. Athens' lassies nipped Russell, 42-39, on the 21-point shooting of Pat Hardeman.

Larry Parker fired 17 points, Jack Beckham 11 and Dennie McDuffie and Donnie Halcomb nine each in Russell's skip past Decatur, which was given a 17-point stint by Bobby DeFoor. Chuck Reiley and Jim Wrighter netted nine and eight for the defending champs.

Cedartown, which upset Athens the night before, pressed Southwest DeKalb's number one seeded team for a half as John Nix bagged 14 of Cedartown's first 17 points.

But Tommy Norwood and Neal Turner, who potted 20 and 16 points, began hitting with regularity after intermission and Southwest DeKalb won in a romp. Guards James Costen and Norwood ran the losers ragged once they got going.

Thursday night's Dalton-Griffin and Rossville-Marietta games will settle the issue as to which other two teams represent the region in the state tournament.

NEXT ON GADGET'S LIST: BOX TO CARRY THEM ALL

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

On the market now-a-days are so many gadgets and devices that any fisherman could very well do without, but which he buys anyway because he has some vague notion that they might help him catch a fish, that most of us have our tackle boxes crowded with bright, new contraptions we seldom or never use. Oddly enough, the only time we ever have any need for one of these contrivances, is when we leave it at home.

Charles Elliott

Not long ago, I was in the boat with Dr. T. E. McGeachy, one of my angling partners, and he happened to glance into my open tackle container.

"All you need," he commented, "is a little anesthetic and any doctor could perform an operation out of that box."

With the iodine, bandage, adhesive tape, scalpel, gut (for suture), scissors, knives and forceps, I guess he was right. Geachy himself had given me the forceps to reach into the throat of a bass and work out a deeply embedded hook, on those days when the old boys are on a rampage and trying to swallow everything that moves.

After a year or two of collecting fisherman's items, there comes a time when any gullible fisherman such as I, must do one of three things. He must either leave some of them at home, forget his tackle and carry only the gadgets, or add a gadget box to his outfit. If he does the first, his problem then involves which of the devices to discard.

Some of those assorted items are a must, and they go with me even if I have to leave a few plugs at home. Knife, pliers, screwdriver, flashlight, extra spools of line are things you might need at any time. And my lure retriever—I wouldn't be caught in a fishing hole without one of those, especially if I'm fishing lures on a rocky, snaggy or rooty bottom.

A number of companies make lure retrievers. They range in design from the original simple "plug knocker," a ball of lead with an eye that you can slip over your line and slide it down to where the hook is hung and knock it off a root or limb, to the more complicated retrievers attached to a stout cord and built to engage the hooks and pull the plug free. Some are equipped with chains and some with heavy bent wires or metal noses to catch the hooks and work your plug loose.

No matter what kind you have, any good lure retriever will usually pay for itself on a fishing trip. The price seldom runs more than two or three times each $1.25 plug you fish off the bottom.

Last year I dredged up an outboard motor with my retriever. A fisherman walked out on the dock at Sinclair Yacht Club and laid his small outboard on the edge of the pier. He turned to get his gas can, hit the motor with his foot and it tipped over, rolling off the dock into 12 feet of water. I probed around with my lure saver until I struck metal, then worked the gadget up and down until the shovel hung on a corner of the motor. With the 100-pound test line on my retriever, I was able to lift the motor to the top of the water, where the fisherman could get his hands on it. That one cost me money. He was so intrigued with my lure saver that I gave it to him.

Not all my gadgets are as useful as the retreiver, but I haul them along anyway. Some day I may have that doctor along, when he wants to perform an operation.

Qualifying Begins Today at Daytona

Tim Flock, Jack Smith Head Atlanta Area Race Entries

By RALPH GREGORY
Constitution Sports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19—The amateurs stepped aside Wednesday to make way for the pros as the Speed Week's crowd braced for the feature events on the famed Beach-Road course here.

A good-sized Georgia delegation will be on hand Thursday when the nation's top stock car drivers begin qualifying runs in three divisions for starting spots in Friday, Saturday and Sunday races.

Roscoe Thompson

Tim Flock

Acceleration and Century Club runs closed Wednesday on the Flying Mile beach stretch and some 150 drivers will use the same area for qualifying runs Thursday. They'll be driving for spots in Friday's 125-mile modified race, Saturday's 160-mile convertible race and Sunday's 160-mile Grand National event.

Among the drivers making Thursday runs will be at least nine from the Atlanta area, including two of NASCAR's top names. Tim Flock and Jack Smith, both regulars in the NASCAR top 10 in recent years, are perhaps the biggest hopes for an Atlanta victory.

Flock won last year's convertible race here and in the beach history has taken four official victories. Smith has only a modified victory to his credit but was fifth in last year's official late model standings.

Two of Flock's records will be at stake in Thursday qualifying. He set the convertible mark last year at 128.570 mph and established the Grand National record at better than 135 mph in 1956. This year he'll be driving the same 1957 Mercury he drove to victory last year.

Smith has a 1958 Pontiac ready for the Grand National race, but so far has not entered the convertible show. Flock will run both and will probably enter the modified race too.

Other Georgia entries are Roz Howard of Macon in a 1957 Chevrolet convertible; Wilbur Rakestraw of Dallas in a 1957 Ford convertible; Bennie Rakestraw of Dallas in a 1957 Mercury; Roscoe Thompson of Atlanta in a 1958 Ford convertible; Charlie Stone of Austell in a 1957 Chevrolet; Thomas Aiken of Dallas in a 1957 Chevrolet and Pete Kelley of Columbus in a 1957 Ford modified.

Acceleration runs wound up Wednesday with all records still intact. Best run of the day was by Winston Brown in a 1957 Ford station wagon. He topped 147 mph for the second straight day.

And the frivolity which has gripped the drivers and officials ended, too, with NASCAR's annual Awards Banquet Wednesday night signaling the beginning of the serious business ahead for the final four days of this last beach-road race. A new million-dollar track here will be the site of next year's events.

The Preparade

Wade Mitchell, Jimmy Lee Head One Man's All-State Tourney Team

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

With the 37th annual state Class AAA (originally the GIAA) basketball tournament upcoming at Alexander Memorial Coliseum next week, we thought it might be interesting to name our all-time state tournament team.

Charlie Roberts

It would be far easier to pick an all-tourney team from the five seasons beginning in 1953, when The Constitution first began co-sponsorship of the big meet with the Georgia High School Assn.

If we picked only from that era we'd choose Baker's Jimmy Lee and Tommy Darrah, North Fulton's Wade Mitchell, Russell's Jimmy Stanley, Richmond Academy's Wayne Richards, O'Keefe's Billy Salter, Decatur's Don Keiser, Murphy's Norman King, Smith's Bobby Kimmel and LaGrange's Bobby Gene Harris.

But, if the choosing is to be over the long haul as far back, say, as the year the center jump was eliminated, we'd go for Wade Mitchell and Jimmy Lee—perhaps the two greatest of recent years—Tech High's Turkey Kirk, Boys High's Tommy Touchstone, Lanier's Jim Nolan, Brown's Richard Allen, Savannah's John Rousakis, Jordan's Bennie Register, Keiser and Richards.

The two greatest players I ever saw who came out of Georgia were Jim Homer from Columbus, who later starred at Alabama, and Bill Spivey, Kentucky All-America from Warner Robins via Jordan. But I never saw them in their high school heydays.

The most able I've seen spring in recent seasons from small schools are Norman Carter Jr. of Talbot County, now a Mercer ace; Wallace Brown of Pine Log, crack guard for Luke Rushton at Young Harris, and Ed Beck, current Kentucky center out of Fort Valley.

Biggest crowd-pleaser we've seen in a state tourney was red-haired Farrell Farr of 1954-55 O'Keefe fame, with Russell's Jimmy Stanley (1955) and Boys' High's Clint Castleberry (1940-41) as runners-up.

Of course such picks are purely recreational in nature and given to memory lapses. Selby Buck, Shorty Register, Shorty Doyal, Dwight Keith, Alex Truitt, Dave Johnston or some of the other old-timers probably could pick a better squad and would remember more players.

It leaves out even such modern greats as Johnny Carson and Richard Bush of Roosevelt, Baker's Gordon Darrah and Carlton Garner, Murphy's Myron Moore and Milton McRee, Benedictine's Pat Casey, Moultrie's Jimmy Herring, Russell's Harry Blondheim and Billy Moran, Grady's Richard Austin, Murphy's Paul Cochran and Milford Bennett, Savannah's Elmer Lott and Walt Rabhan, Richmond's Ray Allen, Rossville's Bubba Evatt, Brown's Sammy Sartain, LaGrange's Wayne Copeland, North Fulton's Joe DeLany, Joe Marco, Joe Milner, Hal Blackmarr and Billy Mitchell—who had the fastest hands I've seen yet on a court.

It doesn't go back and get Savannah's Herb Bergman, later a Georgia Tech star; Jim Umbricht of Boys' High and Decatur and now on the Atlanta Cracker pitching roster; West Fulton's Leroy Thompson or any of the Tech High old-time greats like Joyner (Jo Jo) White, Heavy Hammond, Joe Stearns, Joe Chandler, Buster Mott, Tubby Allen and Jack English.

But such names will stir a million memories of cage fans from several generations.

THE FUNNYBONE—Voice on phone from Manchester, answering question about what team is top-seeded in a region tournament: "Heard County is, but Fort Valley is favored." (He must have been right. Ft. Valley won it.)

PREP PRATTLE — Our personal player of the year: Pine Grove's 6-3 Jackie Bradford. He averaged 34 points a game in 24 games as Brownie Folsom's 1-C Eagles posted a 19-6 record. Bradford hit 47 against Atkinson County, 91 in 3 trips to court to face tough Valdosta. . . . Bob Baxter, supt. of Calhoun County schools, says 6-2 Oscar Tye of Cuthbert is the most brilliant player down thataway. When Sumner lost but held him to 12 points, it was Tye's first under-20 performance. . . . East Hall's first-year-outers pulled the season's biggest shocker by ousting Druid Hills' state defending AA champs from the 4-AA meet. . . . GMA's Bill Cass set a new national prep 200-yard freestyle swim mark of 1:56.2 at Chapel Hill, N.C. . . . Rockmart's Joe Anderson averaged 23 points a game in regular season. . . . Smyrna Campbell has a 20-game home-court winning streak going. . . . WSB's Paul McClay, who'll do radio play-by-play on state AAA, watching O'Keefe cheerleaders rushing tippy-toe off court: "Southern cheerleaders don't make any noise. When cheerleaders rush off a court up north it sounds like the thundering herd."

CONFESSIONS OF REGISTER

Started by Mistake, But Went to the Top

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

B. F. (Shorty) Register, the little man who became a giant of Georgia basketball, confessed Wednesday night. It was all a mistake.

Speaking to the Atlanta Tipoff Club, Shorty peeked over the podium and chuckled, "I started off in this game all by mistake. I got my masters from Oglethorpe in 1919 and went back to my home town of Metter to teach mathematics.

"Well, I stayed there three years, but I didn't teach much mathematics. Or rather, I guess you'd say, I taught more basketball. The boys wanted to play so we organized a team."

Then came three years at Waynesboro. And it was after this that the little man found a resting place. But there's been little rest in Columbus for Register, who made Jordan High a hardwood Hercules for 22 years and now is making the Muscogee capital a muscular metropolis.

Columbus Mayor B. F. Register is a man dedicated to work.

And as introducer Dwight Keith phrased it, "Seest thou a man diligent in his work. He will stand before kings. He will not stand before mere men."

Register remembers when:

(1) Flashlights were needed to locate game balls that escaped through low windows when erring passes were thrown.

(2) He lost one player who ran through the open end of a barn only to find himself locked out because someone had pulled the retractable side back in place.

"One moment I looked up and saw my five boys racing down the court on a fast break. I turned my head and looked again. And there were only four," he chuckled.

Register remembers a University of Chicago tutor who became basketball coach at the University of Georgia and promptly revolutionized the game within the state.

His name was Herman Stegeman, and he brought the zone defense with him.

"At the outset, there were no patterns, no system of play," Register reminisced. "Then Stegeman started it with the zone.

"Next came the outside pickoff play, followed by the inside pickoff. The patterns followed. Some discovered the best defense against a zone defense was a zone offense.

"I had a standard rule when we were faced with a zone. The team would have to pass at least five times before it could shoot."

About the present-day game. "It's vastly improved," Register said. "Better playing facilities and better instruction are the reasons.

"Why, I doubt I could get a job nowadays," the 57-year-old man who's been divorced from the game 11 years laughed. "Anyway, I'm too old to coach now."

Twenty-eight years at the coaching helm produced many victories, many stars and few defeats for the bald man whose head resembles in appearance but not in meaning an albino buckeye.

But for the life of him, he couldn't recall his greatest team, his greatest player or his outstanding athletic moment.

Prep cagers honored at the meeting were Northside scoring sensation Caryl Lenahan and South Cobb incendiary Carey Couch, Metropolitan Area Players of the Week.

As I See It

A Dramatic Actress or Not? Lee Ann Faces Test Tonight

By PAUL JONES

Some of the wise guys in the industry asked, "How can she become a dramatic star when she can't even do a commercial without flubbing a line?"

Jones

Thursday night, the people will determine whether Lee Ann Meriwether is an actress or not.

She will play a leading role in Jack Webb's Dragnet. This showcase will magnify any shortcomings that Miss Meriwether may have. If she can't act, the people will know it. For Dragnet utilizes the "cameo"—or closeup technique. If she can't play a scene, no one will be able to cover up for her.

She has chosen one of the most difficult vehicles in which to make her debut. Jack Webb and Ben Alexander have been playing their respective roles for so long that they can walk through their scenes blindfolded. If Lee Ann isn't pretty capable the contract between her performance and those of Jack and Ben will be so marked that there will be no question about it.

I hope Lee Ann does emerge an actress. I think she has the personality, vitality and good looks to become a star. There's something appealing about her warm smile and the unprofessional way she used to read her lines on the Today show.

Look in on her tonight at 8:30 on Channel 2 and see if she measures up in your book.

The time has come when it takes more than a big, juicy Nielsen statistic to keep some bankrollers happy.

In the past week several sponsors who have interests in some of the top-rated shows on television have begged the networks to let them off the hook. Since they all had cancellation clauses in their contracts, there was little else the networks could do.

Two of these shows which have lost their sponsors are Perry Mason and Wagon Train. Both shows had multiple sponsor deals and the pullout will not leave them high and dry. But, a share of the burden of sustaining them on the air will become that of the networks'.

Just why one of the sponsors pulled out of the Perry Mason show is a mystery. This program had come up with a 30.4 rating against the fiercely competitive Perry Como show. Perry Mason was divided up four ways, but only one of four sponsors is hanging on. Ratings just don't mean the same thing to a sponsor they once did.

Wagon Train also had made a very substantial showing in the Nielsen charts. One of the bankrollers of this show has signified that he wants out, too.

Wagon Train is regarded as one of the finest Westerns on television. It has splendid production qualities, top stars as guests each week and it is offered in the prime Wednesday night spot. The sponsor pullout leaves this show in jeopardy.

I CAN UNDERSTAND how a sponsor would want to give up his interest in The Big Record or Suspicion—two others that are suffering from sponsor apathy.

Lee Ann Meriwether

Suspicion has never managed to hit on all eight. It was supposed to be an Alfred Hitchcock production, but it has been Hitchcock in name only.

The Big Record is neither fish nor fowl. It started out as a rock 'n' roll show aimed at the teen-agers. But the teens weren't interested and the format was switched to include more pop tunes. It has never had the zip and imagination needed to make a show of this sort click.

But, I am happy that the sponsors aren't being bamboozled by the rating charts any more.

JOYCE NASH of Stone Mountain writes: "If Elvis Presley is to appear on television anytime before he goes into the Army please put it in your column so we will be sure not to miss it."

Plans now call for Elvis to appear in a closed-circuit theater telecast. His asking price—$200,000—is too stiff for the home TV.

Borge Returns to TV with Good Music and Good Fun

By J. P. SHANLEY
(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Victor Borge, whose sources of income are honorable, varied and substantial, is in the happy position of not being required to work often on television in order to survive. His show tonight was his first TV assignment in more than a year.

The fact that it was delightful entertainment cannot be attributed, however, to the infrequency of his appearances on the TV screen. Primarily he is a vastly talented entertainer. Some of the comedy and music that he offered on the one-hour program was taken from the one-man show that he has done so successfully in the past on the stage and television.

But his impudent style of fun, delivered between musical passages, bears some repetition and much of it was fresh and outrageously funny. Most of his comedy deals with music, musicians and composers. But he goes afield occasionally to talk, for example, about his two-and-a-half brothers who, he explains, are composed of three half-brothers and one regular brother.

Some of Borge's admirers have complained in the past that he has tormented them by concentrating too much on jokes and not enough on his artistry as a pianist. They should have been contented by tonight's performance. The star played excerpts from works of the late George Gershwin, including the "Rhapsody in Blue," and Rachmaninoff's "Eighteenth Variation on a theme by Paganic." They were done superbly.

Berle Has Poise in Inept Play

By JAY GOULD
(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Milton Berle made his dramatic debut tonight in a play entitled "Material Witness," presented on the Kraft Television Theater. The former comedian brought sincerity and earnestiness to his assignment but the part was a little too demanding for one of his limited acting experience and the play wasn't worth doing in the first place.

Henry Denker, author of "Material Witness," fashioned an extremely inept drama around the idea of an average citizen who is the only witness to the slaying of a gangster and lives in terror of execution by the underworld.

If Denker had probed more deeply into the character of the witness and made him an individual, not just a frightened soul, he might have given his work some substance. As it was, he laid out his cliches in one continuing line and his emotional peaks were only loud and hysterical, never fraught with suspense.

Berle obviously has come a long way from the days when his comedy show won him the title of "Mr. Television." He didn't break character and maintained considerable poise. In the portions of the play where understatement was called for he did acceptably.

But "Material Witness" essentially was a study in panic and Berle found it difficult to tone down his psychological fear or inject much contrast in mood. The role called for an artist more skilled in making every gesture, movement and subtle intonation contribute to mounting tension. But Berle has no reason to be unhappy over his dramatic debut; no actor can be too much better than his lines.

Richard Kiley and Nacy Marchand were among those also in the cast; they did not have an exacting evening.

Georgia Business

Enterprising Reds Refute Extremists

By JIM MONTGOMERY

An ironic story that slipped out from behind the Iron Curtain the other day ought to cheer up some of the more conservative American business spokesmen.

This applies especially to those who cry with evangelistic zeal that our federal government's tax policies and business regulations and operations are undermining the future of private enterprise by smothering materialistic incentives.

Jim Montgomery

Relax, men. Private enterprise can't be killed that easily.

As a matter of fact, it keeps coming back from the grave to haunt the Communist commissars. And as most everyone knows, they use the most effective means of eradication ever devised.

Likewise, they are considered at least somewhat less favorably inclined toward capitalism than is the government of our country.

Still, the rulers of Hungary and Czechoslovakia are so worried about the "un-communistic" activities of individual craftsmen that they have taken new steps which they hope will force the capitalistic "corpse" back into its coffin.

It seems that higher wages paid part-time workers by such entrepreneuers are having "a demoralizing influence," of all things, in these share the wealth "peoples Republics."

The Czechoslovakian workers' paradise goes so far as to accuse its more than 50,000 private entrepreneuers of "inflicting serious political and economic damage on our national economy."

So a new law has been devised to keep the happy workers from being so foolish as to give up their happy jobs in the happy government-operated industries for nothing more than the extra freedom and money they can get from the unpatriotic private craftsmen.

Since there are no such desires in communistic countries, naturally subversive influences must be eliminated to protect the best interests of innocent workers.

Those greedy craftsmen ought to be ashamed of themselves for exploiting people who need jobs by paying them higher wages instead of sharing this wealth so everyone can have a little less!

Pretty soon, the commissars will have to appoint an "Un-Communism Activities Sub-committee" to investigate this obviously treacherous behavior.

Naturally, there would be "red-herring" charges and all that sort of thing.

And the investigators would no doubt have to label their findings "top secret" so they would have time to escape—er, that is, go abroad—to conduct a permanent investigation of how free enterprise manages to thrive in the give-and-take art of democratic compromise.

They would soon discover why even the most ruthless of commissars will never be able to still forever the pulse of freedom.

"Looks like another bad day at the office!"

RCA's Sarnoff Arrives, Predicts Transocean TV

Gen. David Sarnoff—former Russian immigrant boy whose once-laughed-at prophecies of radio and television both came true—flew into Atlanta Wednesday night with a startling new prediction:

Transoceanic television. It is "likely to come within the next five years" and may even utilize earth satellites as relay stations, said the doughty board chairman of gigantic Radio Corporation of America.

Here to address some 1,500 members of the American Bar Assn. Thursday afternoon at the Dinkler Plaza, Sarnoff also:

1. Predicted an "improvement" in economic conditions "before the year ends, and 1958 won't be very far behind 1957."

2. Expressed belief that "we're at the beginning of scientific developments that will dwarf all developments up to the present time."

3. Lauded President Eisenhower's recent stern note to Russian Premier Bulganin.

"He laid it on the line. What he said needed to be said. It is sound, and I hope it will impress Bulganin as it has impressed me," Sarnoff observed.

Obviously in a hurry to get to his hotel room, Sarnoff brushed off an airport interview by a TV camera crew when asked for a "few remarks on the future of radio and TV."

"You don't think I was too rude, do you?" the general asked a reporter who accompanied him to town.

"There's a lot of people more important than me coming to this meeting."

"No sir. You obviously were at a disadvantage being asked to cover so broad a topic," the reporter replied.

"I wasn't at a disadvantage," the general said. "They were. I've learned to say no."

Congress Warned on Spending

Martin Opposes Public Works

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, warned Congress today against trying to "spend yourself prosperous" in its efforts to end the current business slump.

He issued his warning to a Senate banking subcommittee as congressional Democrats pushed an all-out campaign to put "terrific pressure" on the Eisenhower administration to step up its public works program as a means of combatting unemployment.

"MAKE IT HOT"

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), outlining the Democrats' strategy, said "we're going to make it so hot the administration will have to expand the program or face the wrath of an outraged public."

But Martin, one of the chief architects of the administration's economic policies, told the Senate subcommittee he was opposed to a pump-priming public works program or a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

"OVER-STIMULATION"

He said "over-stimulation" of the economy could lead to even more dangerous inflation once the business slump ends.

Martin declined to predict when the current business decline would end. Asked about President Eisenhower's forecast of a possible pickup next month, he replied, "I don't know."

Other economic developments:

—Former President Truman, here for weekend Democratic rally, said it was "high time" the administration restored the public works projects it omitted from the new budget. Truman said the GOP had a "long-standing policy of holding public works projects in abeyance."

NEW AGENCY

—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) proposed that a new government agency like the now - liquidating Reconstruction Finance Corp. be set up to make loans to business firms. He said such an agency would encourage competition and promote full employment.

—Democratic Gov. Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts told the Senate roads subcommittee that the time-table for the construction of the new 41,000-mile network of superhighways should be stepped up to provide new jobs.

Tax Reform Urged By NAM's Lightner

By BOB WILLIMON

U.S. industry's top spokesman—a Republican—took a mild swipe here Wednesday at an administration decision to reject until spring "all present talk of tax cuts or other emergency measures to stimulate the national economy."

"Tax reform is needed irrespective of current economic conditions," said Milton C. Lightner, board chairman of Singer Mfg. Co. and 1958 president of the National Assn. of Manufacturers.

"I do not think tax reform should be based merely on the possibility of a spring upturn in the economy," he said.

ABOUT SPRING

Lightner's remarks came as he was questioned regarding news that the Eisenhower administration and Republican congressional leadership, at a White House meeting Tuesday, decided to defer any possible action toward such measures in anticipation of a spring business upturn.

Lightner added, however, that he did not "believe any conclusion was arrived at (at the meeting) which would require real opposition to tax reform when Congress is ready to consider such legislation."

At the press conference at the Biltmore Hotel, Lightner added he is "hopeful" for tax reforms in the present session of congress. He plugged for passage of the NAM-approved Sadlack - Herlong bill, which he said would be "the best thing that can possibly be done (for business) in the governmental field."

WOULD CUT INCOME

The bill, he said, would "lower everybody's income by at least 25 per cent, reform the unfair tax rate structure, leave more money to invest in economic progress, restrain excessive federal spending and provide safety measures for adjustment of tax rates to prevent deficits in the national budget."

Asked how NAM reconciles its advocation of tax reductions with its opposition to deficit spending, Lightner said the incentive provided business by "real long-range tax reform" would create an "immediate upturn in the economy."

This upturn, he continued, would "produce higher taxable income and thus more revenues" with which to counter the growing deficit.

Such a program, Lightner said "would have an immediate effect in reducing deficit spending, and its full effect would be felt over several years."

Asked for his personal opinion as to the likely effect of the current economic slump and the nation's scientific lag on the 1960 presidential election and earlier congressional elections, Lightner said he did not recognize any U.S. scientific lag. About the slump, he said:

"It is rather traditional in our country to believe that active business, high employment and prosperity are factors which tend to help an existing administration at the polls.

"Personally, I think the political effect of such conditions are often overstated. I think that people more and more are voting on the basis of the principles and character of candidates for office."

Asked to comment in this respect on former President Herbert Hoover, who despite his generally acceded high character and principles fell political victim to the depression of the 1930s, Lightner said:

"That was the greatest slander in the history of the country. No, I won't say that. Just say Hoover was the victim of a terrific amount of propaganda."

In town to discuss the NAM program with local members, Lightner was to go from here to Greenville, S.C., next stop on his tour of the Southeast.

He said the future of Southern industry is "bound to be one of constant growth."

Ike Forecast No Upturn, Hauge Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Dr. Gilbert Hauge, President Eisenhower's special assistant for economic affairs, said today a presidential statement of last Wednesday had been "misread by some people" as predicting a business upturn in March.

"Every indication is that March will commence to see the start of a pickup in job opportunities. That should mark the beginning of the end of the downturn in our economy," is what Eisenhower said.

For himself, Hauge said in an address prepared for the annual conference of State Broadcasting Assn. Presidents that he would expect to see the business downturn "slow to a stop during the second quarter of this calendar year."

"Thereafter," Hauge said, "in my judgment the forces making for an upturn should start to outweigh the downward forces, thus signaling the beginning of a general advance."

Referring to the fact that he was before a communications audience, Hauge said he was venturing a comment on a problem in communications in his own field of economics.

"Let me take as an example last Wednesday's economic statement of the President which apparently has left some people with the impression that he predicted a business upturn in March," Hauge said. "That this mistaken impression was gathered from his statements illustrates how difficult and even hazardous communication at times can be.

"Consider what the President said bearing on this matter.

"First, he stated that indication pointed to the start of a pickup in job opportunities in March.

"Second, the President stated that a job pickup in March should mark 'the beginning of the end of the downturn in our economy.' This language hardly seems to say that an upturn in the economy will come in March.

Expand Now, Expert Urges U.S. Industry

WEST POINT, Ga., Feb. 19 (AP)—An industrial development expert declared today that instead of retrenchment business and industrial firms should now give careful attention to expansion.

Improved availability of men and material makes such a policy advisable, said H. McKinley Conway Jr. of Atlanta, publisher of nationally circulated business and industrial development magazines.

Conway told a meeting of Georgia and Alabama businesmen under sponsorship of the Lions Club, that about the only thing to be pessimistic about at the present is pessimism itself.

He said 1958 promises to be the third or fourth best year on record in industrial growth, with new capital investments totaling around $30 billion.

Many big firms, he reported, are taking advantage of the present situation to launch expansion programs. Others, he said are in the midst of long-term expansion efforts which are not affected by short-term fluctuations.

He mentioned as an example a large retail chain which is adding 40 new stores and modernizing several hundred others.

UAW Wants 40-Hr. Week At Chrysler

DETROIT, Feb. 19 (UP)—The United Auto Workers demanded today that Chrysler Corp. put its work force on a 40-hour week and lay off workers not needed so they can draw unemployment benefits.

The UAW Chrysler Council charged the company is "trying to provoke a strike" to avoid paying unemployment compensation and supplementary benefits. The union said the company has lagging sales and a 90-day supply of cars and is using work speedups to cause daily shutdowns.

The wrangle over short work weeks, production rates and unemployment at Chrysler was part of a darkening picture in auto industry sales. Ward's Automotive Report, industry statistical publication, declared today new car stocks will mount to 900,000 by Feb. 28, a near-record 60 - day supply.

Japan Protests U.S. Restrictions On Importing

TOKYO, Feb. 19 (AP)—Japan's three major business organizations today issued a statement appealing to the United States to "stop restrictions of imports from Japan, which has been the American trend during the past several years."

The statement, signed by the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Federation of Economic Organizations and the Japan Trade Assn., said:

"Japanese stainless tableware, now being made into an issue, as a matter of fact, has developed its own clientele in the United States, and is not competing with the American industry in this line, selling to a different clientele. It is unfair to try to impose prohibitive tariffs on Japanese tableware because such a new proposed tariff would be several times as high as the tariff applied to luxurious tableware."

Very Proper Miss Misses Every Stop

TORONTO, Feb. 19 (AP) — Susan Tiveron, 5, never speaks to strange men. That's the word of her mother, Mrs. Joe Tiveron.

The stranger yesterday was a new driver on the bus that runs past her home from her kindergarten school.

Cotton Down 20-75 Cents

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 20 to 75 cents a bale lower today as light but persistent profit taking and hedging met only limited demand.

Best prices came at the start when commission house buying advanced new crop months to new season highs. Thereafter that section of the market gave ground. The reaction was considered partly technical following sharp advances earlier in the week on the view that chances of an acreage boost this year were remote.

Current crop months were unsettled by increased selling coming through leading spot firms and liquidation in nearby March prior to first notice day for that delivery Monday.

A Houston spot firm today sold about 8,500 bales of nearby May in early dealings.

Position Of 'Shorts' Hits High

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange today reported an increase of 1,088,520 shares in the "sort interest" on the exchange from mid-January to mid-February.

The short interest represents the number of shares borrowed by traders and sold short in the expectation that they will be able to repurchase the stock later at lower prices.

The short interest on Feb. 14 totaled 3,921,260 shares, a record since 1932. This compared with 2,832,740 shares on Jan. 15.

Issues for which sizable increases were reported include: Aluminum Co. of America, from 23,145 shares on Jan. 15 to 43,281 on Feb. 14; American Motors from 20,499 to 41,426; Bethlehem Steel from 74,009 to 134,216; Chrysler from 35,347 to 65,648; Detroit Steel from 3,700 to 14,000; Lorillard from 12,823 to 25,380; New York Central from 12,985 to 39,490; Polaroid from 54,755 to 83,441; Radio Corp. from 11,865 to 26,305, and U.S. Steel from 103,291 to 229,258.

Declines were reported for American Telephone, from 85,175 shares to 48,971; General Motors from 60,293 to 55,190, and Royal Dutch, from 49,900 to 35,885.

Grains Idle, Lack Spark

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (AP)—Trading in grain futures on the Board of Trade was at a low ebb today and prices scarcely strayed from their previous closes.

Nearly all contracts finished lower but only a few by more than minor fractions. The few gains, too, were very scant. Dealings were light.

Traders said the market appeared to be marking time, awaiting some new influences. They added that many dealers were on the sidelines today, uncertain about the immediate outlook.

The small additional wheat export business reported today hardly stirred prices. At one time, the old-crop wheat contracts were fractions of a cent below yesterday's closing prices, but the buying ascribed to export reports boosted them only a fraction over the plus side.

KEEP WELL

Sane Again, They Face Hard Role

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

My heart goes out to men and women who have been released from a mental institution and must face the world anew. Persons who have been institutionaliezd 10 years or more are defenseless against innumerable social and economic obstacles that occur daily.

Their families have learned to get along without them and often resent the responsibility of having to care for them again.

The Research Foundation for Mental Health describes a 19-year-old who was released after five years of institutional care. He came originally from a broken home and is living with his mother, who rejects him.

The young man has learned a trade and is doing good work but the situation at home is discouraging. According to a psychiatrist who sees the boy from time to time in the after-care clinic, the lad repeats over and over again, "The hospital was the only home I knew."

A 37-year-old mother of three found a disrupted household when she returned home from a mental hospital. Her youngest child could not remember her and the eldest daughter resented her. The husband had found another woman to take care of him and his household.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT—
If your child won't drink milk, use strategy by serving it in puddings, on cereals or in the form of ice cream.

This patient broke down and might have needed to return to the institution had she not received adequate after-care. A psychiatrist at the clinic helped her overcome those overwhelming obstacles. She managed in time to win the affection of her children and convince her husband she was capable of being a wife and mother.

Individuals who have lived in a mental institution come back to the community with two strikes against them. Everyone in the neighborhood knows where they have been—they are surrounded by discrimination, fear, prejudice and ignorance.

Neighbors view them with suspicion and distrust because of the stigma associated with the mental condition. The families must cooperate and do what they can to dispel these false beliefs.

Employment discrimination is another factor. The National Association for Mental Health has described a pioneer project, "Employment Planning Committee." This group was formed by 14 employers in San Francisco, working with a welfare agency.

They interviewed a number of discharged mental patients and helped them find jobs. We need more leadership of this type, which entails close cooperation between employer, employe and physician.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions relating to health and hygiene in his column, and by mail when self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Letters should be addressed to Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta 2, Ga.

A Rhyme a Day

"Frustrations and the sense of having failed . . . that others have lost confidence in them . . . can cause physical illness. They should remember some of our greatest men were looked on as failures at some time in their lives."—Medical column quote.

"Beneath the spreading chestnut tree . . . the village smithy stood" . . . and everyone spoke well of him . . . in all the neighborhood . . . but one day when he shod a horse . . . he didn't do it right . . . and then all of the neighbors said . . . "He isn't very bright . . . for anyone can shoe a horse . . . it is a simple chore . . . " and so it was, the smithy lost . . . the trade he'd had before.

A man may do some noble deeds . . . of which nobody hears . . . but one mistake is all he needs . . . to set him back for years . . . despite his efforts to advance . . . through hours of work and pain . . . he, probably, won't get the chance . . . to shoe a horse again.

That is the way "the chips will fall" . . . and how "the die is cast" . . . and not too many will recall . . . the good deeds of the past . . . and if there is a moral in . . . this short and simple tale . . . it is, "they cheer you when you win . . . and jeer you when you fail."
